Medical Doctors in Waupaca: 1852 - Present

Compiled by Julie Hintz; expanded & updated by Gerald E. Chappell. Waupaca Historical Society, 2013-14

Preface by Gerald E. Chappell

In 2000, the Waupaca Historical Society moved its headquarters into the Carnegie building, which had been the Waupaca Free Library. Julie Hintz had just been hired as part time Director of the Society. Among many other tasks, the Director set up a topic file cabinet that included the topic of "Medicine/Doctors and Hospitals" wherein she placed clippings of articles and photos from newspapers (mostly the Waupaca County Post). Around 2005 the Director commenced to sort the accumulating articles and photos from that file into two ring binders which she labeled "Medical Doctors in Waupaca" and "Early Waupaca Hospitals and Riverside Medical Center." She also did some research, along with other members of the Society, to gather up additional material from the 1850s onward for the "Doctors" ring binder, and from the 1900s for the "Hospital" binder.

In 2013 Jerry Chappell made his contribution by adding additional update research findings, by writing this preface, and by listing a table of contents – all a part of the compiling process. Thus the products became, "Medical Doctors in Waupaca, 1850 – Present" and its companion document "Early Waupaca Hospitals, Riverside Medical Center, and ThedaCare Physicians.

The following table of contents reveals the information that was gradually gathered and coupled into this document. Undoubtedly, it is only a part of the doctorial history of Waupaca. We apologize relative to any doctors that we missed, in that we inadvertently did so only because we did not find historical material for them.

DR. CUTTING MARSH was a Presbyterian missionary born in Vermont. He graduated from Andover Theological Seminary in 1827. In 1852 Cutting came to Waupaca and started a Presbyterian Church. Having an interest in medicine, he had read many medical books while in college. Waupaca was in need of a doctor at that time, so Cutting started to practice medicine. From that time on until his death in 1872, he was known as Rev. Dr. Cutting Marsh.

DR. LINUS B. BRAINARD was born in Ohio in 1805. He studied medicine at Western Reserve and practiced in Cleveland. In 1844 he was "seized with Western Fever" and migrated to the "wilds of Wisconsin," locating in Green Bay. In 1853 some Indian land around the tiny village of Waupaca was opened up and Brainard came, by horseback, to buy 280 acres just west of the town. He built and ran a sawmill along the Waupaca River (the remains of which may still be seen), and continued his medical career. He started the Masonic Lodge and was its first Worshipful Master. He died in 1865.

DR. GEORGE R. TAYLOR was born in Bristol, England, in 1822. He was apprenticed to the tanners trade at the age of nine, thus ending his schooling. In 1842 he came with his family to Jefferson County, Wisconsin. For several years he superintended a tinship in Watertown, Wis. In 1850 Taylor went to Madison and while employed at his trade, he studied medicine with Dr. Chapman. Afterwards he attended lectures at the Marine Hospital Medical College in Cincinnati, receiving his diploma in 1855. He came to Waupaca in 1856 and lived in a home on the corner of Lake and State Streets. His office was located upstairs over what is now the Cormican Insurance office at the corner of Fulton and Main. He was a member of the school board for many years. He had six children of his own. He died in 1897 at the age of 75.

DR. G.H. CALKINS was born in Castle, N. Y. in 1830. He received his medical diploma from Buffalo Medical College in 1856 and came to Waupaca in 1857. While serving in the army during the Civil War, he was in charge of the Branch Harvey Hospital at Camp Randall, Madison. Returning to Waupaca after the war, he built a 3-storied brick house where the Farmers State Bank now stands. This house held not only his home but his office and a pharmacy. His wife, who was a pharmacist, helped him to realize a large and lucrative practice. Dr. Calkins was active in the Masonic Lodge, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows (I.O.O.F.) and the Knights of Pythias.

In 1880 Calkins bought property on Sunset Lake, then known as Hicks Lake or Lake Park. There he found several springs. The water from these springs was found to be absolutely pure and was a tonic to those who drank it. Dr. Calkins named the springs Sheltiel and opened them without charge to the public. Later he started a small pop factory using the Sheltiel water as the base. When the Grand View Hotel was opened they had Sheltiel water on the menu. Dr. Calkins died in 1895 at the age of 66.

DR. DARWIN L. MANCHESTER was born in 1833, came to Waupaca in 1854 and worked as a carpenter until 1862 when he enlisted in the regular army and was badly injured in the Battle of Perryville. After many months, he recovered and was sent home. Darwin decided to study medicine and went to a New Hampshire college. After graduating, Dr. Manchester returned to Waupaca to practice medicine. His office and home were located on the corner of Main and Badger Streets, now occupied by the Standard Service Station. He served as mayor of Waupaca in 1882. When the Wisconsin Veterans Home at King was opened in 1887, Dr. Manchester was appointed as physician. He held this position until his death in 1895.

DR. DAGMAR M. BROWN was born in 1833. She was the first woman doctor in Waupaca, coming here in approximately 1880. Her home and office was located in what was known as "The Gothic Hall" on East Union Street. This building stood on part of the site now occupied by the First National Bank. Dr. Brown, who never married, died in 1910. She had one relative in Waupaca, Iner Torsell.

DR. E.S. DONALDSON practiced medicine in Waupaca between 1879 and 1894 and lived on School Street.

DR. JENNIE McQUEEN STILLMAN was born in Illinois in 1850. She became a teacher and then took up the study of medicine and practiced in Waupaca for a number of years before her death in 1898.

DR. F.W. TRIMBLE practiced medicine in Waupaca around the 1880's and lived on North Division Street, across from the Neil Hotel.

DR. EMMA H. WOODWARD practiced here in the 1880's and specialized in treating eyes.

DR. HERBERT LUTHER REED was born in 1843 at Omro, Wis., studied music at the University of Wisconsin, and then decided to go into medicine. He graduated from Rush Medical School, and fulfilled his internship in the office of a physician in Berlin, Wis. Dr. Reed practiced for a short time in Waupun but in 1873, he settled in Waupaca, where he built a home which still stands on South Main Street, two doors north of St. Mark's Episcopal Church. His office was located in the north half of this building. There was a barn in the rear of his home where he kept his horse, a buggy and a cutter.

During his practice of medicine, Dr. Reed became alarmed at the effects of alcohol upon some people. He called alcoholism a disease and the only way to prevent this disease was to "not take that first drink." In this he was many years ahead of his time. He allowed the W.C.T.U. to meet in his home and house their books and literature regarding alcoholism. Dr. Reed, a nature lover, had a fine voice and music was his relaxation. He died in 1913.

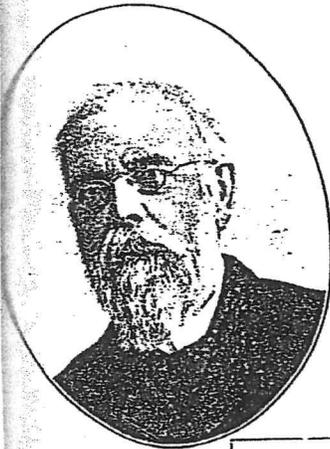

DR. L.H. PELTON was born in Linden, Wis., in 1848. He entered the University of Chicago Medical School in 1870 and in 1871 this college was destroyed in the "Great Chicago Fire." In 1872 Dr. Pelton entered the Bellevue School of Medicine in New York, graduating in 1874. He practiced in Fond du Lac, Wis., a few years and in 1881 he settled in Waupaca. His office was over the Old National Bank building at the corner of Union and Main Streets. He bought a house from A.M. Penny in 1900 on Jefferson Street. Dr. Pelton was a staunch Democrat, was president of the Old National Bank and was also president of the Wisconsin State Medical Society. He lost his eyesight and retired in 1912 and died in 1933 at the age of 85.

DR. J. McNAUGHTON practiced medicine in Waupaca from 1894 until around 1926. His office was on North Main Street. He sold musical instruments and lived on East Ware Street.

DR. BROPHY came to Waupaca around 1896. A bachelor, he roomed with a Mrs. Hall, who lived where the Catholic church now stands. He's remembered as being very helpful during the smallpox epidemic in 1904. Later he moved away from Waupaca.

DR. CARL SANDER came from Denmark and lived at the corner of Division and Randall Streets. He practiced here from around 1895 until 1910 and later returned to Denmark.

his death in 1865. Dr. George Taylor came to Wisconsin in 1842, and studied medicine with a Madison doctor. After attending a medical school in Cincinnati, Taylor came to Waupaca in 1856, where he practiced as a physician until he died in 1897. (17)

In Waupaca, many physicians provided medical services throughout the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Some of the early doctors were minimally trained and some had to supplement their income with other work, but by the time the Civil War ended, most physicians in Waupaca were well-trained, and these physicians provided the bulk of medical care in the community, and established small hospitals and clinics to supplement this care in the most up-to-date manner they could.

The first physician in Waupaca was Dr. Cutting Marsh, a Presbyterian missionary from Vermont. Formally trained as a minister, Marsh also studied medical books in college. Because Waupaca had no doctor when Marsh came in 1852, he began to practice medicine, and continued to practice until his death in 1872. Another early settler was Dr. Linus Brainard, who came to Waupaca in 1853, buying a large farm west of town. Although he studied and practiced medicine in Ohio, he built and operated a sawmill in Waupaca along with practicing medicine until

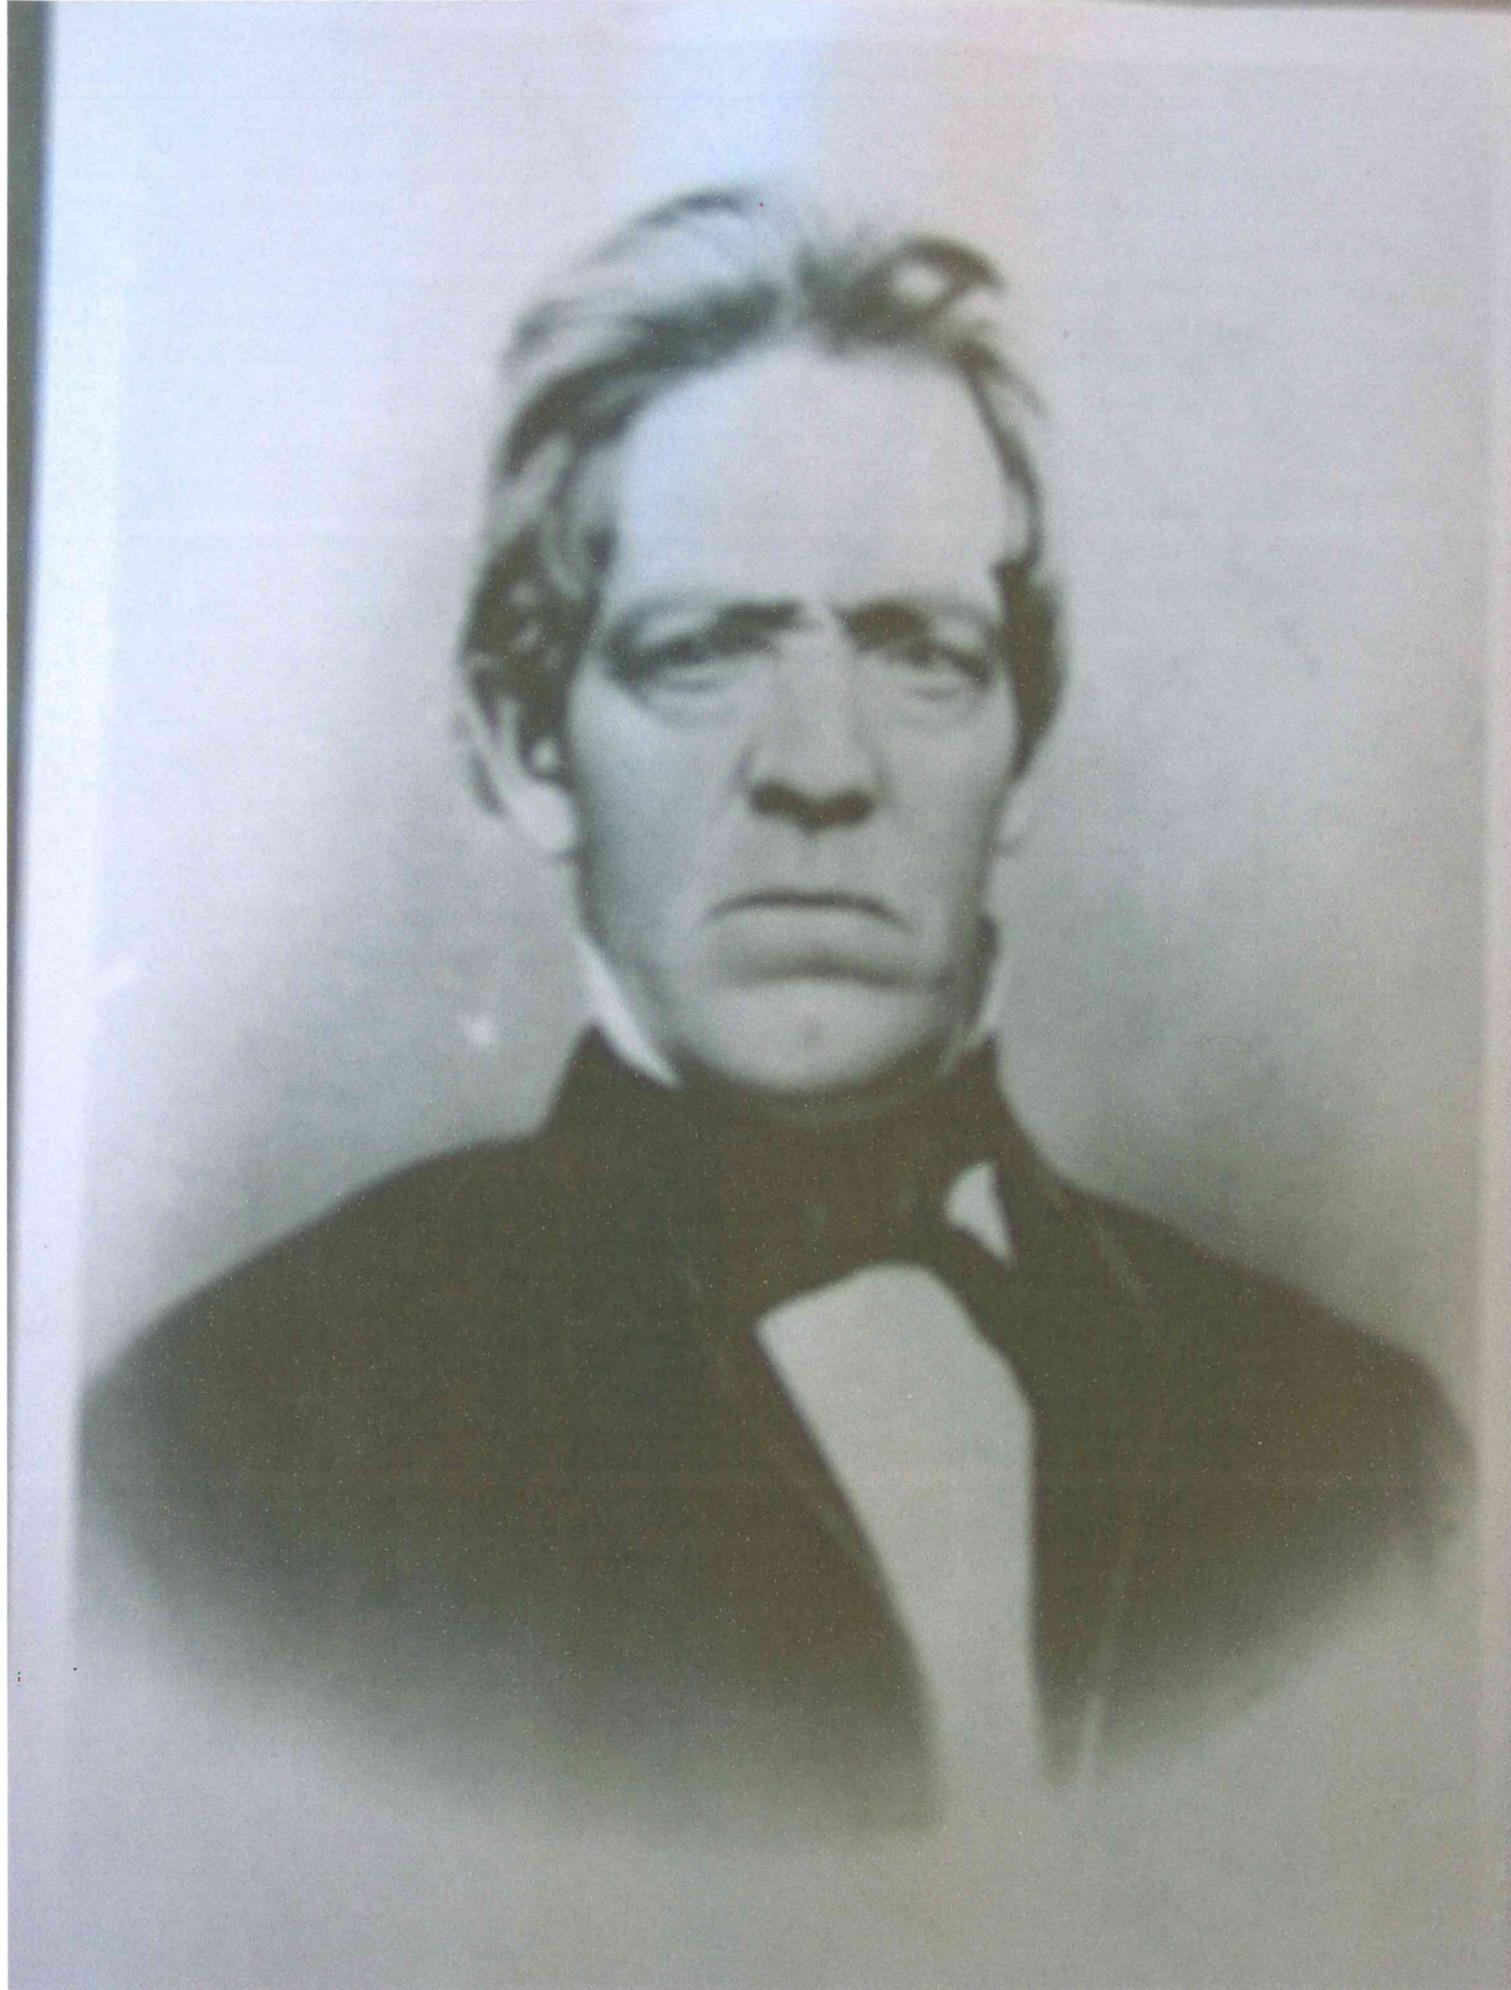

One of the more well-trained of the early doctors in Waupaca was Dr. G. H. Calkins. He graduated from Buffalo Medical College in 1856, came to Waupaca in 1857, served as an army surgeon during the Civil War, then returned to Waupaca. His wife was a pharmacist and Dr. Calkins operated a pharmacy along with his medical practice. In 1880, he began a business bottling spring water from the area and operating a spa. He was involved in both his medical practice and springs business until his death in 1895. Another doctor who served in the Civil War was Dr. Darwin L. Manchester, although he served in the army as a soldier, not a doctor. After the war, Manchester studied medicine in New Hampshire, then returned to Waupaca and started a practice. In 1887, Dr. Manchester became the first physician for the new Wisconsin Veterans' Home at nearby King, holding the position until he died in 1895. (18)

There were three women who practiced medicine in Waupaca during the nineteenth century. Dr. Dagmar M. Brown was the first, coming to the city around 1880. She practiced in Waupaca until 1910. Dr. Jennie McQueen Stillman was a teacher who studied medicine and practiced in Waupaca for a number of years in the 1890s. Dr. Emma Woodward was a prominent optometrist who specialized in medical treatment of the eyes. She practiced in Waupaca in the 1880s. (19)

During the turn-of-the-twentieth-century years, new, well-trained, doctors came to Waupaca to practice medicine. Dr. H. L. Reed was a Wisconsin native who attended the University of Wisconsin, then graduated from the prestigious Rush Medical School. In 1873, he came to Waupaca where he had a long medical practice that was centered out of his home. A staunch prohibitionist, he felt alcoholism was a disease and worked actively with the Women's Christian Temperance Union in the city. He died in 1913. Dr. L. H. Pelton was also a Wisconsin native who attended the University of Chicago Medical School, then graduated from the Bellevue School of Medicine in New York City. In 1881, he came to Waupaca and practiced for many years in the old bank building at 122 S. Main St. He retired in 1912 and died in 1933. (20)

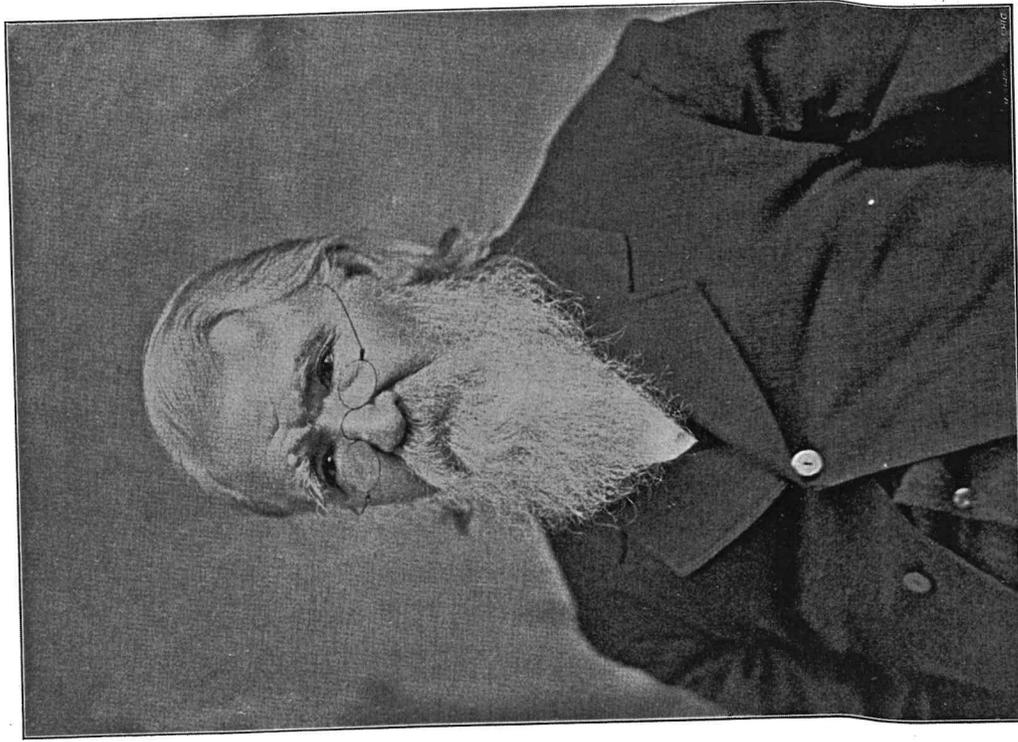

Two of the most important physicians in Waupaca during the early twentieth century were the Christofferson brothers. Drs. Peter J. and Albert M. Christofferson were born in Waupaca County. P. J. Christofferson studied to be a nurse and after nursing for a while, went to a St. Louis medical school. In 1904, he came to Waupaca and opened a practice in 122 S. Main St. Albert Christofferson graduated from medical school at Barnes University in St. Louis in 1909. After practicing in Colby, Wisconsin, he came to Waupaca in 1920 to help operate the Christofferson Hospital with his brother. The Christofferson Hospital was the largest and most significant of the formal hospitals started in Waupaca during the early twentieth century. The Christoffersons operated the hospital until 1933, when it became a community hospital. P. J. died in 1936, and Albert continued to practice medicine until 1955; he died in 1960. (21)

Dr. F. C. Wood operated several small hospitals out of his homes in Waupaca in the early twentieth century. He came to Waupaca in 1911 and practiced out of homes on S. Washington and Ware Sts. In 1924, Dr. Wood converted his home at 503 S. Main St. into a small hospital, as well. He practiced at this location until 1940, and died in 1944. Dr. Fremont Chandler was a very well-trained early twentieth century doctor in Waupaca who practiced out of an office in the old bank building at 122 S. Main St. He graduated from Rush Medical College in Chicago and began practicing in Waupaca in 1915. A prominent civic leader, Dr. Chandler was also mayor of Waupaca when he died in 1931. (22)

L. B. Brainard

LINUS BIDWELL BRAINARD, M. D., was born in Boardman, Trumbull Co., Ohio, October 30, 1805, the eldest in a family of eleven children. His father, who came from Connecticut, and was a pioneer in the Ohio wilds, lost his life by being crushed under a log while helping a fellow pioneer erect his cabin.

While yet in his "teens" young Linus was thus obliged to become the head of the family. He superintended the work and instruction of its members, and began his own career by teaching school. Having a rich, mellow voice, he also gave singing lessons, and became a successful instructor. On attaining his majority he entered upon the study of theology, looking forward to work in the Episcopal ministry; but after a few months he turned his attention to medicine. He pursued his studies in the Western Reserve College, and graduated with the highest honors. In 1839 he removed to Cleveland, where he continued his medical practice until 1844. In the summer of that year he was seized with the Western fever, then contagious, and migrated to the Territory of Wisconsin in the then "Far West," his family following him on the opening of navigation the following year.

Dr. Brainard purchased a tract of 1,040 acres of land in Sheboygan county, and erected a sawmill on Pigeon river; but the title proving imperfect the whole was lost. In 1849 he moved to Green Bay, and served during the Taylor-Fillmore administration as deputy collector at the port of Green Bay. On the incoming of the Pierce administration his head fell into the political basket. In June, 1853, he went on horseback from Green Bay to the then newly-opened Indian lands in Waupaca county, and entered 280 acres of land near the village of Waupaca and removed with his family to the village in November of the same year. Thus again, at the age of forty-eight, he began anew the life of a first settler on virgin land. A portion of the forest was felled, and the land plowed. A sawmill was erected on the Waupaca river a half mile above the village, and put into active operation, working night and day, but the demands upon his time and skill as a physician and surgeon were such that the mill and various shops connected therewith were left wholly in the care of others, and did not prove a lasting success. A few years later the mill was burned and was never rebuilt.

Dr. Brainard was one of the moving energetic spirits in the early days of the town. He brought about the establishment of the Masonic Lodge, and was its first worshipful master. In his profession his services were constantly in demand, and in surgical cases he was remarkably successful. His fame spread through the pineries, and his horseback rides were often to points seventy and eighty miles distant from his home. In 1862 he received a surgeon's commission in the army, and served with the Seventh Wisconsin Infantry until the close of the war. He was then assigned to duty in the regular army, where he continued several months. On his return to Waupaca county he resumed his medical practice and remained actively at work until he had nearly reached his eightieth year. In politics Dr. Brainard was an Old-time Whig, and when the party died he affiliated with the Republican side in the political world.

A thorough scholar and a ready speaker, he delivered many lectures before lyceums and societies, besides contributing many articles to the Press. He also occupied a prominent place in all political gatherings, and in meetings where Waupaca's advancement was to be considered. He lived to see his forty-acre homestead embraced within the city limits, and his other lands rise greatly in value. He often said he should live to pass the eightieth milestone in his life. He died November 14, 1885, two weeks after his eightieth birthday, leaving three children: Charles Rollin Brainard, a lawyer; L. Henry, and a daughter, Alice.

GEORGE H. CALKINS, M. D., a prominent physician of Waupaca county, and also proprietor of the beautiful Sheoliel Mineral Springs, three miles west of that city, is a Grandson of the American Revolution, for his grandfather, John Calkins, a yeoman of New York, was one of the liberty-loving patriots who took up arms to free America. John Calkins married Jane Eyre, and had a family of eight children: John, Hiram, Russell, Norman, Volney, Nelson, Varanes and Sarah.

Varanes Calkins, father of George H., was born in New York, April 18, 1808, and was by occupation a farmer. He married Betsey C. Utter, three years his junior, a native of Washington, N. Y., and only daughter of Abram and Matilda Utter. Their two children were Dr. George H. and Abram U. The former was born at Castle, Wyoming Co., N. Y., April 21, 1830. Varanes Calkins was a man of notable character, energetic and prominent among his fellows, but he met with financial reverses through kindness of heart. He became surety on the negotiable paper of friends, who failed to meet their obligations, and the property of Mr. Calkins was consumed in settling the claims. In 1852 he moved to Maryland, and settled on a farm near Washington. Two years later he removed to Delavan, Wis., but a little later joined his son at Waupaca, where he died December 18, 1867. The mother died July 10, 1880, at the residence of her son in Amherst, Portage Co., Wisconsin.

Young George remained on the farm until he was eighteen, attending school at every opportunity. He was ambitious, and wavered for a time between the professions of law and medicine. The chicanery practiced by some lawyers decided the important question for him, and in 1849 he entered the office of Dr. J. B. Stanton at Ellicottsville, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., as a student, remaining with him five years in his drug store. To obtain funds to attend lectures at Buffalo Medical College, he practiced medicine for two years in Maryland before graduation, and finally received his diploma at Buffalo in 1856, spending two years in college and hospital. The young physician opened an office at Waupaca in 1857, and has ever since resided in that city. In the early years of his practice the country was new, and the patients were widely scattered. The Doctor met with many adventures while making distant professional calls, but he soon built up and has always held a large and lucrative practice. In 1863 he entered the army as a contract surgeon, doing hospital duty, and was commissioned assistant-surgeon of the Thirty-seventh Wis. V. I., May 12, 1864, and took charge of the Branch Harvey Hospital, at Camp Randall, Madison, Wis., serving till the close of the war, when he was presented by the patients with an elegant gold watch as a token of their esteem.

Dr. Calkins was married March 18, 1852, to Miss Caroline L. Jenkins, who was born in eastern New York, February 5, 1834, a daughter of John and Rachel (Greene) Jenkins. Her mother was a near relative of the brilliant and patriotic Gen. Nathaniel Greene, of Revolutionary fame. The Doctor has had a family of ten children: Henrietta, Ella L., Carrie E., Marion W., Earl G., Maggie M., Jennie May, Minnie A., Blanche E. and Junie A., seven of whom survive. Yielding to the persuasion of his friends, Dr. Calkins, in 1874, became a candidate for the State Assembly, and was elected by a handsome majority, serving two years. In politics he is a Republican. He is a Royal Arch Mason and a Sir Knight, and a member of the I. O. O. F., and a Knight of Pythias, having taken all the degrees in the Temple of Honor; also a member of the A. O. U. W. For twenty years he has been a prominent member of the Presbyterian Church. In years gone by he has been closely identified with the State and county medical societies.

The Doctor has a handsome residence in the city of Waupaca, and also owns Lake Park, where he has several nice cottages, and where he spends his summers. Besides looking after his large practice, he is the owner of the celebrated Sheoltiel Mineral Springs and bottling works, at Chain of Lakes, three miles west of Waupaca, of which he is proprietor. These sparkling waters, free from organic matter and sulphate of lime, have won a wide reputation, and are now shipped in large quantities to all parts of the country. Being remarkably free from solid matter, it acts as a tonic solvent when taken as a beverage, and for many of the ailments to which humankind is heir it acts as a specific. The Spring is one of the most attractive spots in the State, and is much frequented by lovers of Nature and by invalids in quest of health.

Dr. Calkins received his diploma at Buffalo Medical College before coming to Waupaca in 1857. In the early years of his practice the country was new, and the patients were widely scattered. The Doctor met with many adventures while making distant professional calls but soon built up a large, successful practice. In 1863 he entered the army as a contract surgeon, doing hospital duty, and was commissioned Assistant-Surgeon taking charge of the Branch Harvey Hospital at camp Randall, where he stayed until the end of the Civil War.

After the War he returned to Waupaca to resume his interrupted practice. His residence was a three story brick building on Fulton Street (which later became the site of the Palace Theatre) Next door was his office and pharmacy, the latter operated by a druggist whom Dr. Calkins employed. Mrs. Calkins, herself a licensed pharmacist, assisted.

Obituary of

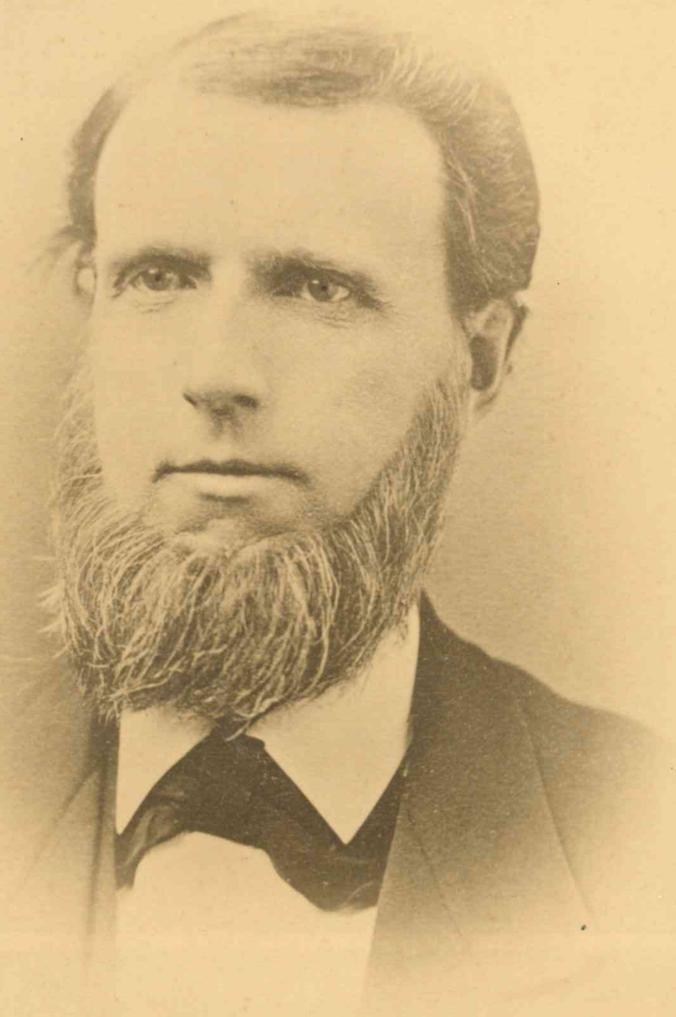

Dr. George H. Calkins, born April 2, 1830, died June 22, 1896

The funeral of Dr. George H. Calkins was held Friday afternoon last, under the auspices of Waupaca Lodge No 123, F. & A. M., of which the deceased was a member. The Episcopal burial service was read at the house by Rev. H. L. Hurlson, after which the remains were taken to Lakeside cemetery and buried with the Masonic ritual, Worshipful Master, George James conducting the service. The procession was one of the largest ever seen in this city. About twenty members of St. Croix Commandery, Knights Templar, came first, followed by the members of the G. A. R Then came the Masons, there being about sixty in line, followed by the hearse and pall bearers, Mssrs. Nelson, Parish, Beadleston, Scott, Howlett and Van Epps. After this came the long line of carriages containing the mourners, Members of the W. R. C. and friends. All stores were closed during the funeral, as a mark of respect to the deceased. Dr. Calkins will be greatly missed by the people of Waupaca and vicinity, where he has lived for so many years. The family has the sympathy of all in their great affliction.

Herbert Luther Reed was born in the village of Omro June 10, 1853. He received his early education in the Omro schools, later attending the state university, after which he taught in Omro High School for a time. He then took up the study of medicine with Dr. H. B. Dale, a pioneer physician of Oshkosh, graduating from Hanneman Medical College at Chicago in 1880. He began the practice of medicine at Waupun, remaining there six years, then moved with his family to Waupaca, where he practiced until ill health forced him to give up his work. In 1876 he was married to Marilla E. Calkins of Farmington.

Deceased is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. E. M. Worby of this city, Mrs. F. C. Reimers of Oshkosh; a brother, Dr. Will A. Reed of New York City; a sister, Mrs. E. R. Hicks of Oshkosh, and five grandchildren; one son having died in young manhood.

Deceased was a member of the M. E. church of this city. His death was caused by pneumonia. His wife and daughters had spent much of the time with him during his last illness. died March 3 1923

Spells HOMEOPATHY, an improved medical science,
Analysis of symptoms being their strong reliance,
And H. L. REED is the oracle to consult,
And improved health and finances will be the result.
No violence is done to the organs internal,
No caustic invasions, or drugs infernal,
But nature is allowed to have her sway,
And be assisted in the natural way.
Dr. REED answers promptly to every call,
And fees include medicine, attendance and all.

DR. H. L. REED,

HOMOEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Office and Residence on Main St., Waupun.

Dr. Herbert L. Reed

Practiced medicine in Waupaca from made his home until 1880, when he removed to Marion, Waupaca county. In 1882 he came to Symco, where he has since successfully engaged in the practice of law, enjoying a liberal clientage. Mr. Quimby was married in 1870 to Mary S. Van Patten, who was born in Rock county, Wis., daughter of F. P. and Laura Van Patten, of New York, and by their marriage they have four children—Matthew H., Mabel, Frederick and Jessie.

Politically Mr. Quimby is a Democrat, and, as every true citizen should do, manifests a deep interest in public affairs. While he was in the army he was elected the first town clerk of Dupont township, Waupaca county, and has served as chairman, as justice of the peace of Symco, and for years as health officer. His wife is a notary public. Socially, he is connected with J. B. Stedman Post, G. A. R., of Manawa, of which he is serving as adjutant. His public duties are ever faithfully performed, his private trusts are conscientiously discharged, and in all the relations of life his conduct has been such as to merit the high regard in which he is held. During the war he was a loyal soldier, and in times of peace he is alike true to his duties of citizenship.

HERBERT L. REED, M. D., an active practitioner of medicine at Waupaca, Waupaca county, is the grandson of one of the earliest pioneers of Winnebago county, Richard Reed, who in October, 1847, migrated with his wife and family of seven children to the site of Omro, Winnebago county, where a primitive cluster of white settlers was then forming.

The father of Richard was a native of Scotland, who had emigrated to the New England colonies in ante-Revolutionary times and took up arms for the American patriots, receiving in one of the battles a bullet which he carried with him to the grave. In his later life this Revolutionary soldier had migrated to New York, where his son Richard was born. The latter was married in New York to Cynthia Anderson, and they had seven children—Luther, Royal, Philander, Richard, Ellen, William H. and Cynthia. Luther, the eldest child, was born in New York in 1823, was well educated and studied civil engineering, and during the early pioneer days of Wisconsin he taught school. In 1850 he was married to Zibah Littlefield, who was a native of Maine, of Irish extraction, and daughter of Winthrop and Emma (Ham) Littlefield. Three children were born to Luther and Zibah Reed, as follows: Dr. Herbert L., the subject of this sketch; William A. and Cynthia M. Luther Reed was an earnest Republican, and served at Omro as town clerk and in many minor offices. When the call came for volunteers to suppress the Rebellion he was among those who enlisted, but he was rejected; each of his four brothers displayed equal patriotism, and served honorably through the long civil strife. Luther Reed died in 1881, a highly-respected pioneer. His wife still survives, and now makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Hicks, of Oshkosh.

Herbert L. Reed, the eldest child of Luther and Zibah Reed, was born in Winnebago county June 10, 1853, attended the common schools at Omro, and from the time he was sixteen worked out on a farm or taught school. He aspired to a higher education and to a professional life, and attained it mainly through his own unaided efforts. In 1875, at the age of about twenty-two years, he entered the office of Dr. Harvey Dale as a student of medicine, and, after reading with him three years, attended lectures for two years at Hahnemann Medical College, Chicago. His preparatory studies thus closed, the young physician opened an office at Waupun, Wis., in about 1881, and remained in active practice there for six and a half years, in 1888 removing to Waupaca, in which flourishing city he has since built up a large and lucrative practice.

Dr. Reed was married, in 1876, to Miss Marilla Calkins, who was born in New York. Her parents, Volney and Harriet (Cole) Calkins, were both natives of that State, and in 1858 migrated to Wisconsin, settling on a farm in Waupaca county with their four children—Marilla, Viola, Viletta and Mary. To Dr. and Mrs. Reed three children have been born: Earl, Jessie and Ethel V. In politics Dr. Reed is a member of that large and growing factor of independent voters who endeavor to support the men and principles which seem best, regardless of party connections. He has served as city physician. Mrs. Reed is a member of the M. E. Church.

Hold Services Tuesday for Former Veterans Home Nurse

Funeral services for Mrs. Jean S. MacLaughlin, 77, a resident at the Grand Army Home, who died on Aug. 1 after a lingering illness, were conducted Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 4, by Rev. E. C. Lewis, of Stevens Point, in the chapel at King. Burial was in Lakeside cemetery, Waupaca.

Mrs. MacLaughlin, a retired registered nurse, was born May 31, 1882, in Plymouth, Ohio. She was graduated from Plymouth high school in 1900, and taught school in that area for awhile. Later she was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware, O., and spent two years on the Lakeside hospital staff.

Later, she was superintendent of nurses in the Mansfield, O., hospital. She and Dr. Harry A. MacLaughlin were married in Mansfield on Oct. 1907. They moved to Waupaca in 1912 and practiced medicine here.

Dr. MacLaughlin died in 1931. Four years later his widow became a nurse at the Grand Army Home hospital. She retired in 1948, due to ill health, and later entered the veterans home as a member. She resided in the hospital annex until a few months ago when she was moved to the GAH hospital.

Three sons survive. They are Robert C. MacLaughlin, Indianapolis, Ind.; Calvin W. MacLaughlin, Marshalltown, Iowa, and David S. MacLaughlin, Toronto, Ont. Also surviving her are five grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Mrs. MacLaughlin was a member of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Daughters of Union Veterans, American Legion Auxiliary and United Spanish War Veterans Auxiliary.

DECEASED PHYSICIAN HONORED

(Contributed)

Honor of Retirement as a Disabled Emergency officer of the World War, was granted recently by the U. S. Veterans to Lieut. Harry E. MacLaughlin, deceased.

After others in Washington had given up hope of securing justice for this officer, Major John F. Mullen of the Adj. Generals office, Madison, Wisconsin, secured the vital evidence and presented it through Capt. Watson B. Miller, the American Legion representative in Washington. These two men worked for months and their efforts succeeded in proving that Dr. MacLaughlin's long illness and death were very evidently due to a heart stroke and dilatation of the heart which occurred while he was on active duty at Fort Riley, Kas., in 1917, where he was carried unconscious to the Fort hospital. The resulting heart condition compelled him to resign from the medical corps of the army and to return to his home at Waupaca, in December 1917.

He suffered ever increasing heart trouble until on May 15, 1931, he passed away not knowing his retirement would be granted.

A marker for Dr. MacLaughlin's last resting place, with appropriate inscription giving credit for his services in both the Spanish-American and World Wars has also been furnished by the government which he served always as a volunteer in time of war.

Local Chiropractor To Retire After More than 50 Years

One of the deans of Wisconsin chiropractors closes up her Waupaca office Oct. 1 and moves to Bethany home for a long awaited retirement.

Eighty-four year old Dr. Lillian Edelbach, will bid farewell to her second floor combination apartment-office on N. Main st. after over 50 years of practice.

Dr. Edelbach came to Waupaca in July 1911 to become the first of her profession in the city.

She continues to be keen observer of the Waupaca scene, and especially remembers the coming of paved streets to the downtown area.

Dr. Edelbach has combined physiotherapy and chiropractic and has made extensive use of therapeutic machines.

Treatments generally take an hour causing Mrs. Edelbach to remark "I guess you might say we're old fashioned in that."

* * *
THE SLIGHTLY built Dr. Edelbach originally got interested in chiropractic through her daughter Lillian's misfortune.

Lillian had become an invalid while still a child so Dr. Edelbach, who was a trained nurse at the time, decided to become a chiropractor.

She enrolled at Universal Chiropractic college at Davenport, Iowa, and was able to complete the four-year course in three years.

A picture of her class of 1911 adorns the south wall of her office. Only she and a Monroe, Wis. man remain alive today out of a class of 44.

After graduation she returned to her family in Waupaca and was able to give her daughter some of the care she needed badly.

Her first office was in the house east of Peragen Ford on Union st. and the late A. M. Penny later built an office for her in the Penny apartments.

She moved 30 years ago to her present location.

* * *
HER SMALL office has evidences of a man that she still regards with the highest admiration. A large framed picture of Will Rogers highlights one wall and a smaller portrait sits on her desk.

"I remember that my husband and I never missed a Will Rogers movie," smiled Mrs. Edelbach.

Mr. Edelbach died in 1950 and at present only she and her pet parakeet, Eddy, are at home.

She also remembers with pleasure efforts of the late Congressman Edward Browne, in getting passage of a law in Oct. 1925, to license chiropractors.

Additional honors will be accorded Mrs. Edelbach this fall at the Society of Wisconsin Chiropractors in Milwaukee. A gift for 50 years of service will be presented.

On the local scene she recently marked a half century of membership in the Eastern Star.

FREMONT ELMER CHANDLER, M. D. To recount the lives of the Chandler family in Waupaca County would be to give in large measure the history of this section of Wisconsin since pioneer days. They have been people of sturdy, upright character, contributed their intelligence and morality to both the early and later epochs of the county's history, and have been extremely useful citizens, whatever their vocations. It is as representative of the third generation of the family in the county that Dr. Fremont Elmer Chandler is known. Dr. Chandler spent many years in successful practice of medicine and surgery in the City of Chicago, and people of Waupaca have in many ways expressed their special appreciation of his recent return to the community, where both his father and grandfather were so long prominent citizens.

In Lind Township existed for many years what was known as the Chandler settlement. Capt. Augustus Chandler and his wife, Polly Chandler, grandparents of Doctor Chandler, came to Waupaca County in 1849. Captain Chandler was a carpenter by trade, but also acquired considerable farming land. When he was past seventy years of age he built a barn for his son, Augustus Chandler. He died in Lind Township at the age of eighty-nine, and his wife passed away at seventy-nine.

Augustus H. Chandler, father of Doctor Chandler, was born in Hanover, New Hampshire, in 1819, and was about thirty years of age when he came to Waupaca County, in 1849. He acquired a tract of Government land, consisting of 160 acres in Lind Township and another tract in Waupaca Township, and was a very successful farmer. He was active in local affairs, served as treasurer of Lind Township and of Waupaca Township, and as assessor of Waupaca City. He was a whig in his early days, voted for William Henry Harrison, and later becoming affiliated with the republican party he enjoyed the experience of voting for another member of the Harrison family, Benjamin Harrison, in 1888 and 1892. For many years he filled the post of deacon in the Baptist Church. His death occurred in 1893. Augustus H. Chandler married Susan Woodward, who was also born in Hanover, New Hampshire, in 1823. She arrived in Waupaca Township in the spring of 1850, and she taught the first school in the county. A cousin of Doctor Chandler, Miss Mary Chandler, taught the second school in the Town of Weyauwega. Mrs. Susan Chandler died in 1899. Of their children, William H. died at the age of fifteen and Jessie at the age of five, and Doctor Chandler is now the only surviving member of this branch of the family.

Born in Lind Township, of Waupaca County, November 31, 1861, Doctor Chandler spent his early years on the homestead farm, also lived in the City of Waupaca, and was graduated from the high school there in 1879. His higher education was acquired in the University of Wisconsin, of which he is a graduate with the class of 1886. Then followed an interval in which he did farming and other lines of work, but he finally concentrated all his time and energies upon his preparation for medicine as a student in Rush Medical College, where he was graduated in 1893. From the year of his graduation until November, 1915, Doctor Chandler remained in Chicago and built up a very satisfying and profitable practice there. He then returned with his family to the old home in Waupaca County and has since practiced with offices at the corner of Main and Union streets. He is a member of the County, State and American Medical associations, and has always maintained especially high standards in his professional work.

He and his family belong to the Baptist Church, and he holds the position of deacon in the church at Waupaca, both his grandfather and father before him having been similarly honored by the church.

In 1889 Doctor Chandler married Miss Mary Saxe, of Whitewater, Wisconsin. She graduated from the Whitewater Normal School and from the University of Wisconsin in 1886, the same year as Doctor Chandler. They have reason to be proud of the attainments and accomplishments of their children. The firstborn, Bancroft Saxe, died in infancy. Louise graduated from the Lakeview High School of Chicago, from the Northwestern University, of Chicago, and for two years had charge of the Botany and Zoology in the Wakefield High School, in Michigan. On December 28, 1916, she married A. Lee Fletcher, also a graduate of Northwestern University and its law department, and who is now a practicing attorney in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Fremont Augustus is also a graduate of the North Division High School, of Chicago, and in 1916 completed the course of the medical department of the University of Wisconsin and now has charge of athletics and the department of physiology in the high school at Grand Rapids, Wisconsin. William Stephen is a graduate of the North Division High School, of Chicago, and is a junior in the agricultural department of the University of Wisconsin and in 1915 was assigned by the experts as center on the All-Conference basket ball team. Ruth graduated from the Waupaca High School in 1916, and assists her father in his office. Edwin Woodward is a freshman in the Waupaca High School and Arthur Homer is still in the grades. Mary Ellen died in infancy.

Doctor Chandler owns a farm and sawmill in Lincoln County, Wisconsin. That is a property which not only returns some material profits, but has been the place where he has spent a number of his vacations, and his sons have gained practical experience in farming and the wholesome recreation of outdoor life. In politics he is a republican voter without any desire to participate in practical politics. His city home is an attractive residence at 501 South Division Street.

Country doctor

It will be another hilltop of their lives together for Isabel and Sam Salan on Dec. 1. Their friends have set aside this day as a time of tribute for their near-50 years in this community.

Area residents are determined to show their affection and appreciation to this couple for the five decades they have shared. It is predictable that this pair will turn it all around to radiate their own love for this community which they feel has given them so much.

Dr. Sam is casual about the milestone, saying softly, "I don't think much of anniversaries as such, but if they want

With characteristic verve, Isabel welcomes it. "It is our chance to say thanks for a good life — but, let's remember nothing is finished. There is a lot of good living ahead."

A general practitioner for 51 years, Dr. Sam loves medicine and is a steadfast proponent of all its healing arts. Laying clean the simple philosophy which has made it a good life for him, he says, "Man should be born with an expectancy for life and health, live it in rich fulfillment with vigor and die with dignity." Those are the very ingredients of his medical kit which have ministered to three generations.

With Isabel at his side, her talents as a registered nurse, her compassion and empathy, have been an integral part of his fulfilling his role.

The community echoes its feeling with "You can't think of one without thinking of the other."

As instruments of comfort, physician-nurse, counselor-friend there has been the joy of more than 3,000 births, un-his foresight and constancy and Isabel with her innate drive to make things happen.

These are the happenings for which the community is grateful. The Salan's side of the story discloses how many times love has been the magic quotient.

"I wanted to be with him every minute I could," Isabel confesses. "This was impossible to do professionally, but we managed it in our private life."

Their love story was launched in 1923, when he was an intern in residence at Fort Wayne Methodist Hospital and she was there in nurses training. The romance began one night when she was on her way to mail a letter to her fiancé and Dr. Sam offered her a ride.

After a long ride in the country and an ice cream soda that night, Isabel relates, "Everything changed for me. I felt comfortable, a feeling that has gone on through the years."

Happy and in love, they were untouched by their families' disapproval of the union — he was a Jew and she a Presbyterian.

"My father tried to dissuade me," Dr. Sam recalls with a wry grin. "If you are going to do this — go as far away from Fort Wayne as you can to medicine" he told me. That's what brought us to Waupaca. I answered an ad in 1925, came here to talk with Dr. C. W. Andrews, purchased his practice for $600 with a $300 down payment and went back to Indiana to marry my corpus delectable."

They were married on Oct. 3 by a Methodist minister and married on the next day by a rabbi and set out for 'home' in their new Dodge.

"Coming as Doctor's 'shiksa' in the eyes of his Orthodox parents, posed no problem for us," says Isabel. "His mother was happy because we were married by a rabbi. The aunt who raised me was happy because we were married by a minister. We knew no barriers.

The highlights of their intertwined professional and private lives they reter when the roads were blocked in winter.

In the early years, Dr. Sam performed his surgery at St. Michael's Hospital, Stevens Point, and St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Appleton. He opened his private Mirror Lake Hospital, 301 Lake St., in 1936, and here his patients were cared for until 1955 when Riverside Community Memorial Hospital was opened. The Salan team gave a great deal of their energies to that project, Dr. Sam with counted numbers of times when they looked at death under the grimest circumstances and all the in between times of healing with medicine and scalpel. Understanding.

Working as a medical team to achieve their goal, "the best in medicine for every patient," Isabel worked on special cases, administered the anesthetic (office and hospital) and went with him on emergencies, over deeply rutted country roads, and by rented horse and cut-call as most precious are the countless times, when after spending the night on a case in the country, they were returning home. "We would park on a hilltop, watch the sun rise and love each other."

The family circle of love grew. First sons David and Jerry, later daughter-in-law Nancy and then the grandchildren Suzanne, Sara Beth, Scott and Samantha brought special joy. The circle of friends is unending.

Isabel is generous in her praise of the many who helped her in her enthusiasm for living. "I have always had so much freedom to express myself," she says with tenderness. "For 38 years, Mamie Sarnowski has been a friend, Sam's office manager, practical nurse, housekeeper and babysitter. How can I adequately thank her for those years of devotion?"

In community work, this zestful woman made a niche for herself. There was a time for her to be a part of the Danish Lutheran Ladies Aid, the Monday Night Club, Girl Scouts, The Baptist Union, Royal Neighbors, Phythian Sisters, Eastern Star, Hospital Guild, American Cancer Society, PTA, Hadassah, Zion Temple Sisterhood, Waupaca

Recollections

These years in medicine have special bench marks for Dr. Sam. "I brought some first into my practice here, the use of sulphamillamide, penicillin and insulin shock therapy (with the help of my brother Dr. Joseph Salan, a psychiatrist)."

Would he change anything?

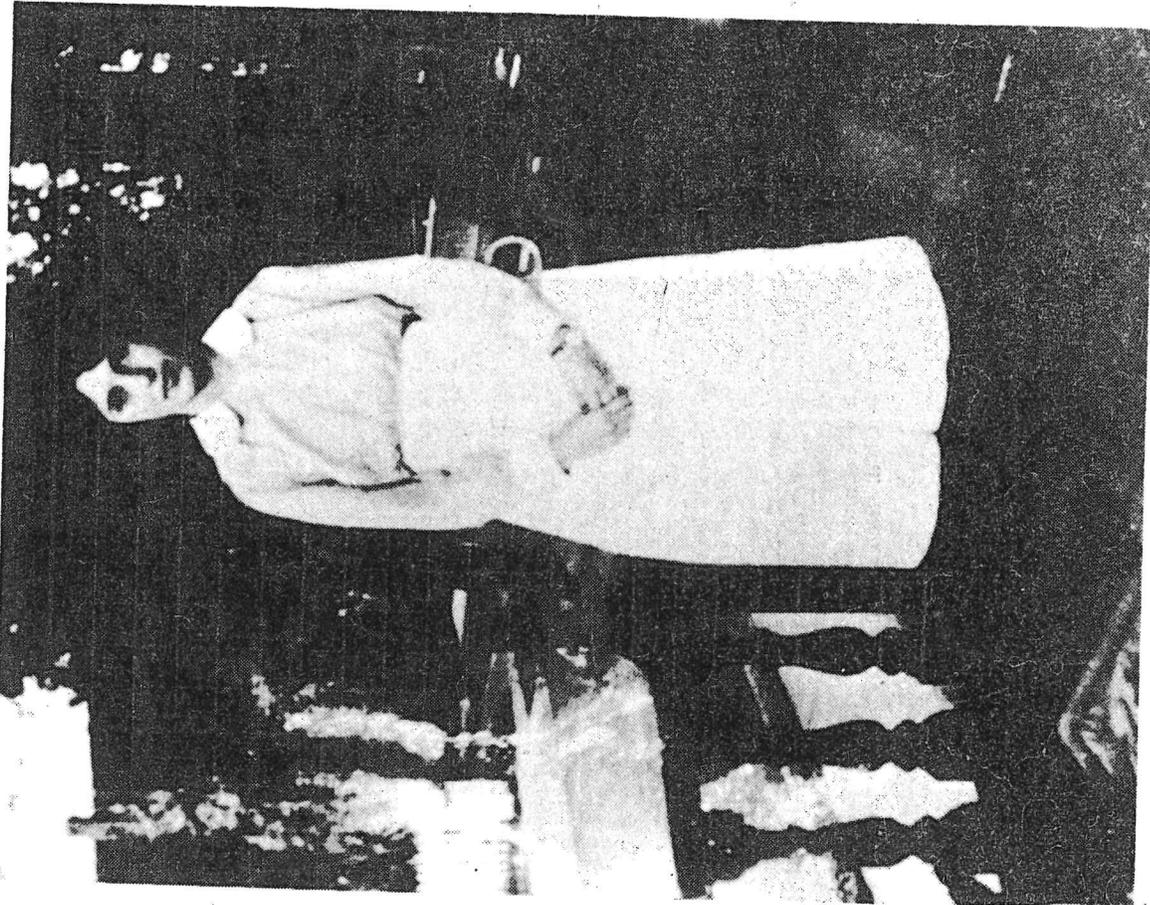

"Rising medical costs don't suit my fancy," he responded. "The rich man can afford the care he needs; the person on Medicare or Medicaid will get it, but what about the ones in between? Costs are too high, they can't afford it, they put it off and then there is real trouble. No man anywhere in the world should have to pay $500 for a herniotomy."

Caught in the backwash of this time for remembering, Dr. Sam and Isabel are delighted with most of their friends recollection. A favorite has to do with Dr. Sam's years as a violinist and his Waupaca Troubadors — who would rent a launch and serenade the residents on the Chain O' Lakes. "People recall the darndest things — some of them would be better forgotten," he observes good naturedly.

The one thing which has taken this indomitable duo away from the city and those they love is travel. Their insatiable hunger for new places and new faces has taken them to the Orient, Hawaii, over the North and Central America continent, most of Europe and two trips to Israel.

In most recent years, they have traveled on long vacations in their motor home. Above the door is written "Shalom." In greeting and parting this is the talisman of their good life — Peace and God Bless.

Country Club, and now Tomorrow's Youth.

She has a special ingredient for getting a job done. "I would rather have her shoulder to the wheel of any project I wanted to move than anyone I know," acknowledges a fellow committee worker. "If she said she would do the job, it was done."

A leader, not a pusher, her spontaneously, fervor, compassion and drive was mellowed, perhaps, in the living out her favorite Hebrew teacher's philosophy, "Do not do unto others that which is distasteful to you — all else is commentary."

In the doctor-patient relationship, those who love Dr. Sam find it difficult to put their feelings into words. Initially they recall his gift as a raconteur. "You could feel terrible going into his office, sit down and the visit always began with one of his favorite stories," recounts one old-timer. "Before he found out what was wrong and prescribed, you lost your fear and felt comfortable."

The impact of this skill is best told by Carl Bacher, long-time friend. "I had been feeling bad for a couple of days, stopped at Dr. Sam's office, we visited for about 30 minutes because we hadn't seen each other for a long time," he recounts. "I apologized for taking up his time in the exchange of stories and left."

Dr. Sam finishes the story. "About 10 minutes later Carl called. Hey, I was sick when I came in there and I forgot to tell you about it."

A doctor learns a lot, Dr. Sam reminisces. "When I first came here, most doctors dispensed their own drugs, but I was going to be a big internist, with stetoscope, syringe and a few serums. I went on a call about five miles out in the country and the man was very sick. I wrote two prescriptions and handed them to him. He looked at me and said 'I can't go five miles to town to get these filled, the boys will be late with chores and by the time they get to the drugstore it will be closed.'

"I drove back to town, had the prescription filled and drove back out to the farm and gave them to the man," he continued. "I won't charge you for this second visit."

"Right then I made up my mind that I would have drugs in my own office; it helped the patient and saved me a lot of time," he mused.

The calm, reassuring and gentle manner of Dr. Sam does not belie his true nature. No one can recall ever having seen him angry. "There have been a number of times when the doctor was provoked because he couldn't do more for a patient," comments on-the-scene Mamie Sarnowski, adding, "They are the greatest two people you could find anywhere."

House calls

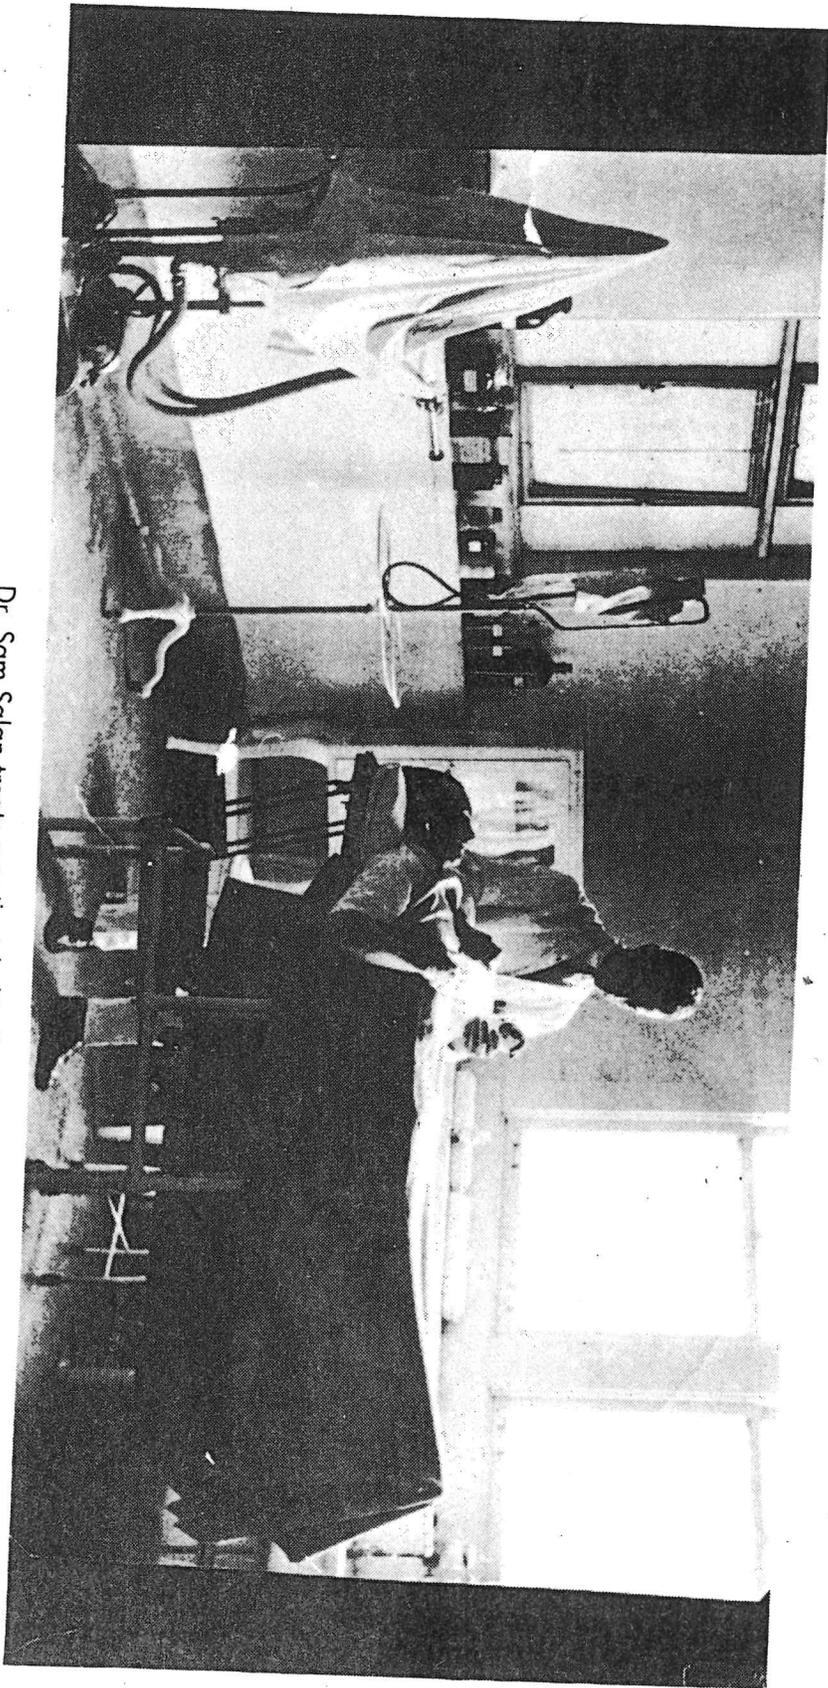

Dr. Sam gives a good deal of credit for the early growth of his practice to Miss Ollie (Alice) O'Dell, who handed the telephone switchboard in Waupaca. "She always managed to find me when there was an emergency — never gave up until she had," he recalls.

One night, Isabel and I were at an Eastern Star dance, when she called about a sick boy in the country. We drove out there, had to perform an emergency appendectomy. We must have looked unusual, she with her sterile gown over a formal and me with gown over a tuxedo.

"Sure, we went back and finished the dance," he volunteered to the obvious question.

Making house calls, which Dr. Sam considered an important part of his medical career, were continued where needed until a couple of years ago.

Everybody knows vacations are for fun and that's how it should be. Be sure that yours fulfills its intent.

Anyone who has spent some time in an emergency room of a hospital, when the vacationers flock to our area, soon gets the impression that the people are casting all caution and good sense aside; which might soon converts a joyous occasion into a time of pain and often tragedy. This is, of course, not true because the people that are seen in the emergency room are the unprepared, the careless and the unfortunate, and this is only a

Dr. Hamel elected Chief of Staff at Riverside Hospital

At the February 2 meeting of the Medical Staff of Riverside Community Memorial Hospital, Dr. Peter Hamel was elected Chief of Staff. Dr. Hamel joined the staff as pathologist July of 1981.

He attended Wheaton College in Illinois and graduated from the UW Medical School in Madison. Before coming to Waupaca, Dr. Hamel served three years of residency at the University Medical Center in Columbia, Missouri and one year at St. Luke's Hospital in Milwaukee.

Dr. Hamel is Board Certified in both anatomic and clinical pathology. (A pathologist is a physician who has taken four years of additional training to become an expert in the use of laboratory tests to diagnose and treat disease.)

Dr. Hamel would like to use this opportunity as Chief of Staff to work with the medical staff and the hospital "to coordinate activities in this transitional period in medical care." As Director of Continuing Medical Education, he expects to work with those involved in community education to continue the high quality of programs offered and to expand the program.

He is pleased to be a part of the well-qualified medical staff and also feels that Riverside Hospital has attracted some of the most respected consulting physicians in the area to be on its staff. Because of these factors, the hospital is able to offer services on a par with those of much larger institutions.

Dr. Hamel replaces Dr. Terry Hankey who has completed two years of service. Dr. Hankey will soon be relocating his practice to Wausau. Other medical staff officers elected are Dr. Barton Blum, who will serve as vice-president and Dr. Roy Buchholz, who becomes secretary/treasurer.

Dr. Maasch: Physician of the Year

Weyauwega's physician for the past 33 years, Dr. Lloyd Maasch was named Wisconsin Physician of the Year at the 40th annual Scientific Assembly of the Wisconsin Academy of Family Physicians at Stevens Point this past weekend.

Dr. Maasch was honored by his peers at the annual banquet on Friday, June 17, one day after his 60th birthday.

"I was thoroughly surprised," Maasch said of the honor. "I was not aware that I had been nominated." He later found out he had been nominated by several fellow physicians. A committee made the selection.

Born in Ashippun, WI and graduated from Marquette University in 1950, Dr. Maasch received his Doctor of Medicine degree at Marquette in 1953. He earned a two-year scholarship from the Oconomowoc Scholarship Fund and a scholarship from Marquette University. His internship was at St. Joseph's Hospital, Milwaukee, and he began his practice in Weyauwega on August 1, 1954.

He served in the U.S. Navy as a Medical Officer from January, 1955 until he resumed his practice here on March 1, 1957. While in the Navy he served in Okinawa and Japan.

His medical and community accomplishments have been numerous over the years. He is an active member and past president of the Riverside Medical Center, Waupaca, and the New London Medical Center.

He is a member of the American Medical Association and has received the AMA Award for Physician Recognition for his continuing medical education. He is also a member of the State Medical Society of Wisconsin. He has served as the Waupaca County Medical Society's annual delegate to the state medical meetings for 25 years and served on various committees.

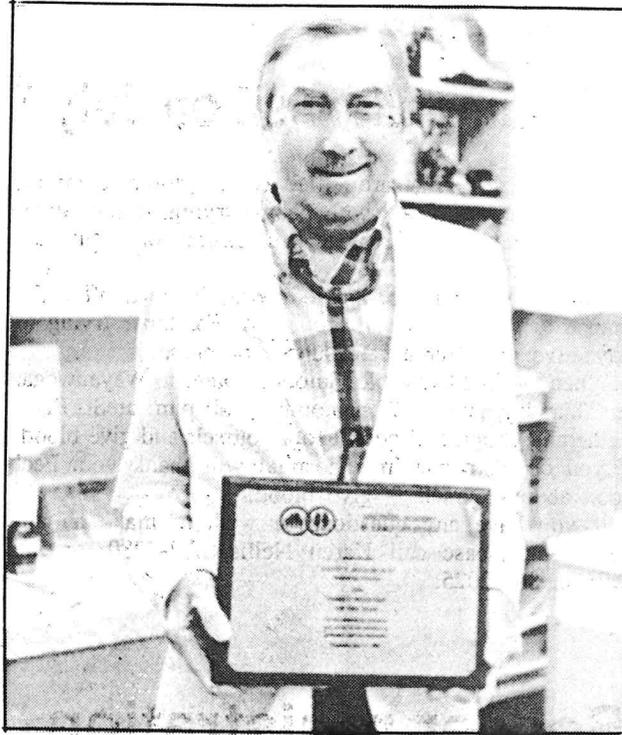

As a member of the American Academy of Family Physicians he was named a Fellow of the Academy in 1988 at San Francisco. As a member of the Wisconsin Academy of Family Physicians he is an active member of the Finance Committee.

Dr. Maasch has served as President of the Fox Valley Academy of Medicine and is also a member of the World Medical Association.

He has assumed the duties as medical director of many Nursing Home, Waupaca; Lakeview Manor, Weyauwega; and Manawa Convalescent Home.

Weyauwega's only physician from 1957-1982, he always found time to be involved in the community as a member of the Arndt-Bruly American Legion Post, Weyauwega-Fremont Lions Club, the Weyauwega Area Chamber of Commerce, and named an honorary member of the Waupaca Jaycees receiving the Distinguished Service

Dr. Lloyd P. Maasch received a plaque from the Wisconsin Academy of Family Physicians for his outstanding dedication to his patients, profession and community.

Community Sends Wishes To Doc. Maasch

Dr. Maasch's concern and leadership has brought a quality of life enjoyed today.

Dr. Maasch has served as an officer, spearheaded a markable community site for industrial and continuing economic growth.

Along with wife Pat, he has been a force for the outstanding facility, the Maasch's success is a result of involved citizens and a caring community.

They have our love and respect. We wish them joy during the holidays.

Most nursing home residents are grateful for the caring and attentive physician, but Dr. Maasch has been the heart of the residents at Lakeside. The patients are very attached to him.

It's hard to put Dr. Maasch in a box. He has been incredibly giving and caring. People should really take time to listen and to understand these patients.

The nurses always need him. Even during Packer games, he would be there watching. We knew if he wasn't at the game, we were missing something.

He was always on site and always made them feel that was really appreciated.

Despite an often painful condition, he still always had a joke to tell. His wife Pat, also described him as bent over backwards to help others and to relay messages.

We are proud that Dr. Maasch was the medical director of Lakeside.

Longtime Weyauwega doctor announces retirement plans

By ME. BAILES

Lloyd P. Maasch, M.D., one of northeast Wisconsin's most distinguished physicians, has announced that he will retire from medical practice effective January 1, 1993.

Consulting with the announcement, Riverside Medical Center has revealed that it plans to name its new education center the Lloyd Maasch Education Center in honor of Dr. Maasch. The facility is due to be completed in the spring of 1993.

A graduate of Marquette University and the Marquette University School of Medicine, Dr. Maasch first came to Weyauwega with his wife, Pat, in 1953 and established a private practice there.

Since 1957 he has been affiliated with Riverside Medical Center, serving as chief of staff for the hospital numerous times. In 1981, he was named in his family medical practice by Roy Buchholz, M.D., who will assume responsibility for the practice after Dr. Maasch retires.

The list of titles held by Dr. Maasch is both long and impressive. Since 1982 he has been the Waupaca County Coroner. Currently, he holds the positions of medical director of Weyauwega Health Care Center, Pine Ridge Manor, Bethany Nursing Home, the Manawa Convalescent Home and Lakeview Manor.

Dr. Maasch is on the staff of the New London Family Medical Center, where he has served as chief of staff a number of times. From 1973 to 1987 he was an adjunct professor at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh School of Nursing.

Dr. Maasch has held virtually all the offices available in the Waupaca County Medical Society, and for 30 years was the delegate or alternate to the state convention. He continues to serve on the Reference and Credentials Committee of the State Medical Society, and he has been both a delegate and a member of the Finance Committee for the Wisconsin Academy of Family Practice. Additionally, he served on the board of directors and is a past president of the Fox Valley Academy of Medicine.

The list of awards and tributes with which Dr. Maasch has been honored is equally long and impressive. In 1988, he was selected as the Wisconsin Academy of Family Practice Physician of the Year. In that year, he also received a citation from the Wisconsin Legislature for dedication to medicine and community.

In 1989, he was one of 10 finalists for Family Practice Physician of the Year, awarded by the National Academy of Family Practice. The Boy Scouts, Lions Club, and the Jaycees have all honored Dr. Maasch with awards and cita-

Each July 4th, Weyauwega hosts an annual Dr. Maasch Appreciation Day, which is held at the city park.

Dr. Maasch's achievements are not limited to his medical practice. He also has a strong record of civic achievements. Having interrupted his practice to serve as a physician for the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps, he is a member of the American Legion. He currently holds two positions on the cabinet of District 2782 of the Lions Club, that of diabetes awareness chairman and election chairman, and has been a past district deputy governor. He has also been on the Weyauwega Chamber of Commerce and is an honorary Jayceer.

In 1969, Dr. Maasch founded and chaired the Weyauwega Park Committee, which developed Weyauwega City Park. He obtained the land for the 16-acre park, and spearheaded both the drive for financial funding and for volunteer construction efforts. In 1972, he received a citation from the Wisconsin Legislature honoring his efforts and his dedication.

In 1983, Dr. Maasch was instrumental in building the new Weyauwega Public Library by donating funds for the children's wing in memory of his son, Patrick John.

Dr. Maasch and his wife are members of St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church in Weyauwega, and he is the founder and president of the St. Peter's Foundation Fund, an endowment for the church.

"I wanted to come to a small community to practice," Dr. Maasch says, recalling his first year as a physician in Weyauwega. "I visited several communities, all over the state, and I liked this one the best.

"The practice of medicine has changed a lot for me."

In the years before physician specialists became commonplace, Dr. Maasch delivered many babies and, as they grew up, continued to provide all their medical care. He performed and assisted in numerous surgeries.

"And I made hundreds, even thousands, of house calls," he says.

Dr. Maasch still occasionally makes house calls, a rare practice among doctors today.

Riverside Medical Center was still in the planning stages when he first moved to Weyauwega.

"I've had many patients there over the years," he says (continued on page 5)

WAUPACA COUNTY POST

"I've enjoyed working at the hospital and being part of it." An unusual feature of his practice has been his refusal to schedule appointments for office visits. Dr. Maasch believed that people who were sick should be able to see him immediately and not have to wait days or weeks for an appointment.

"When I woke up in the morning, I was never behind, and when I was finished at the end of the day, I was done," he says. "It's a strange way of doing it, but it worked out for me."

Pat Maasch comments that her husband's patients have been like their own family.

"When we came here, we wanted to be part of the community," she says. "And we feel we've gotten the rewards from that. We've shared all their joys and sorrows."

Sorrow has been no stranger to the Maasches, who lost three of their five children over a nine-year period.

To compound the tragedy, several years later, Dr. Maasch fell victim to rheumatoid arthritis. In the last 10 years, he has had four operations on his hip and received 33 pints of blood. He spent 120 days in the hospital in 1986, and, while waiting for a hip replacement, continued his medical practice from a wheelchair.

Because of the restrictions of rheumatoid arthritis, Dr. Maasch was forced to alter his lifestyle. Formerly very athletic - he skied, bowled, hunted and played golf - he turned to hobbies such as photography and painting. Twelve of his paintings have been donated to the Weyauwega Health Care Center and can be seen on display at that facility.

The deaths of his children, as well as the chronic pain he endures, have made Dr. Maasch more sensitive to his own patients who have lost a family member or who have become ill.

"Until you experience it, people don't realize it's very difficult to have pain every day of their life," he says.

However, despite his difficulties, Pat Maasch says, "Lloyd has a very good sense of humor, and he has kept it." She adds that he is a natural storyteller.

"If you can tell a story or laugh," says Dr. Maasch, "it helps take away pain."

The couple loves to travel; they have been around the world three times, and visited every continent except Antarctica.

"For me, my work was seven days a week - Saturdays, Sundays and holidays," says Dr. Maasch. "The only time I ever had a day off was when I went on vacation."

Continuing his medical education and learning about medicine in other countries has always been a part of the Maasches' world travels.

"Every trip we went on to every country was like a semester of college," says his wife.

Dr. Maasch will have no problem filling up his time in retirement. "I'm going to paint a lot," he states. "A lot of people want paintings."

He is also looking forward to yard work - he already has planted 10 acres of black walnut trees and a hundred fruit trees on his property, as well as making plans to study the Civil War and visit the battlefields.

"And just think," says Pat Maasch, "he can read all of James Michener's books now. I've got them all waiting for him in line!"

The Maasches' son, Robert, lives with his wife, Patricia, and three daughters in New London. Their daughter, Sue Ann, lives in Minnetonka, Minn., with her husband, Tim.

Sharing his thoughts about leaving his medical practice, Dr. Maasch says, "I want to thank and appreciate all the people who came to me, and who allowed me to take care of them."

The Co Bes

Dr. Maasch is certainly a man with many hats to wear.

He has been a caring physician for many years (all my life - as a matter of fact he delivered me).

Dr. Maasch has been a wonderful community promoter, being instrumental in the lovely Weyauwega park and an active member in many community organizations.

Throughout the years I have come to know Doc and his family. I have come to appreciate his wonderful and colorful sense of humor. (Like the time he put a bucket underneath my ingrown toenail and said, "just in case the toe falls off.")

Doc has always loved Weyauwega and we in turn love him.

We wish you a terrific retirement.

*- Judy Buchholz, President
Weyauwega Chamber of Commerce*

Dr. Maasch has been an active member of the Riverside Medical Center team since his arrival to Weyauwega about 55 years ago.

He has made many, many significant contributions to the health care in both the Waupaca and Weyauwega communities.

I believe one of the most valuable contributions Dr. Maasch has made through the years is his love for people and his wonderful sense of humor. To know Dr. Maasch is to smile and feel a warmth of respect few people can claim.

Dr. Maasch will continue to visit and work with our communities after his retirement.

Dr. Maasch, we wish you the very, very best!

*- Jan Carrell, Administrator
Riverside Medical Center*

Having known Dr. Maasch as both my own personal physician and as my co-worker, I have developed a deep respect for his dedication to his patients and his strong commitment to the community. I will miss being able to work with him on a daily basis, listening to his jokes, and also hearing his more serious philosophies of life.

I wish him all the best in his retirement.

-Roy Buchholz

We have had the privilege of working with Dr. Maasch since 1971 when the Manawa Community Nursing Center first opened for business. Since that time, Dr. Maasch has served our residents as physician and our facility as Medical Director.

We feel we cannot speak highly enough of this good man - he is a knowledgeable and respected physician, a great and caring teacher, and a patient and kind human being who understands that people make mistakes.

Dr. Maasch,

It has been a pleasure to work for you. We will truly miss you and your sense of humor. Enjoy your retirement, you deserve it.

With our wishes for many years of health and happiness...

- Becky, Sue, Gloria, Eileen, Peg

From one salty sailor to another, do you still wear navy shoes?

Ever since shooting my first buck, I knew you were an excellent surgeon. You came over from Big Rock and skillfully dressed out the deer with your scalpel.

Remember the year we sat down for breakfast and Jim and Jenny had this gal all dressed up in high heels wait on us?

- Jim Taylor

Weyauwega Health Care Center will certainly miss Dr. Maasch's faithful years of service as medical director of this facility. We want to thank him for his prompt attention to the needs of the residents, no matter what time of day or night.

The paintings he donated to the facility will be a constant reminder of his dedication and support to our staff and residents.

His sense of humor could brighten even the bleakest of days. Staff members will never forget the jokes, the German and the clowning around. We'll miss you Dr. Maasch.

- the Staff and Residents of WHCC

When Doc Maasch came to town, he only had two white shirts - one he wore and the other one Pat had to iron before we could go out for a hamburger.

Now I suspect he has at least three white shirts, and all paid for.

Doc and Pat have always been our dear friends. When I was on one of my many fund-raising dinners I...

Dr. Maasch's concern, involvement, foresight and leadership has contributed to the high quality of life enjoyed by Weyauwega citizens today.

Dr. Maasch has served as the city's health officer, spearheaded development of our remarkable community park facility and secured a site for industrial expansion resulting in the continuing economic viability of the community.

Along with wife Pat, who has been a driving force for the outstanding Weyauwega Library facility, the Maasch's have epitomized the role of involved citizens and neighbors in a small community.

They have our love, gratitude and respect. We wish them joy during their retirement.

— Nick Wohlt
City Administrator

Most nursing homes have more than one attending physician, but since the early 1960s, Dr. Maasch has been the attending physician for all of the residents at Lakeview Manor. And those patients are very attached to him.

It's hard to put Dr. Maasch into words. He's been incredibly giving.

People should realize how dedicated he has been to these patients. He has always taken time to listen and to understand.

The nurses always new they could call on him. Even during Packer games on Sunday when they knew if he wasn't at the game he would be home watching.

He was always on schedule to make rounds and always made them. He never cancelled, and that was really appreciated.

Despite an often painful arthritis condition he still always had joke to tell in between patients. His wife Pat, also deserves a mention. She has bent over backwards to put us in touch with Doc and to relay messages to him.

We are proud that Dr. Maasch will be staying on as the medical director at the facility.

— Jeanne Zempel, Administrator
— The Nursing Staff
Lakeview Manor

I had the opportunity to work with Dr. Maasch when I was in a clinical position and later an administrator at Riverside Medical Center in Waupaca, as well as six years as the president and chief executive officer in New London.

Dr. Maasch is one of the most caring and compassionate physicians I have ever had the opportunity to work with, and if they ever gave an award to the physician who tells the best jokes, he would win it.

Dr. Maasch -

He is a wonderful person, a friend and doctor. He loves to tell jokes (but I can't remember them all).

If it wasn't for Dr. Maasch we wouldn't have our beautiful park where we hold the annual 4th of July Dr. Maasch Softball Tournament.

His absence from his family practice will be missed by many young and old!

Despite all the hardships he has personally endured, he still has a smile for everyone?

To sum it up, Doc, We Love You.

— Eunice Kemp

I haven't been around that long, as compared to a lot of people, but I do know that Dr. Maasch is very concerned about civic affairs and has done a lot for the town.

He is very active in Lions and it seems, as with everything he does, that he is more concerned about other people than himself.

— Larry Hendricks, President
Weyauwega-Fremont Lions Club

Both Dr. Maasch and his wife, Pat have been very big supporters of the library. They were very influential in getting our new library built. We really appreciate that. I know he'll enjoy his retirement because I know Pat has things planned. So, Dr. Maasch, my advice to you is simple, "Sit Back And Enjoy!"

— Lucie Erickson, Library Director
Weyauwega Public Library

I have had the pleasure of knowing "Doc" Maasch for the past three years. He personifies the very best qualities in the medical profession.

To say he is a "prince of a man" is an understatement.

Doc has had a positive influence on all members of our community. I have enjoyed working with him as a "Brother Lion" and member of our Chamber of Commerce.

In addition to many positive qualities, that make him unique in a most admirable way, he tells the best jokes of anyone in our community.

On behalf of the School District of Weyauwega-Fremont, thank you for a job well done.

In closing, I think the Germans say it best: "Auf Wiedersehen" I'll be seeing you! Take care and best of luck.

Dr Lowell Peterson,

Lochner celebrates 30 years in Waupaca practice

May 2006

In three decades as a physician in largely rural Waupaca County, Dr. Mark Lochner relates some of his small-town experiences to those of "Doc Baker" from "Little House on the Prairie."

"Over the years, my wife has discovered a bag of vegetables or other items on the front doorstep as a token of appreciation from a patient," said Lochner, of ThedaCare Physicians-Waupaca. "I never got paid with a chicken or a turkey, but I have received some thoughtful favors. A few years ago I told a patient in her 90s I liked blackberries. That afternoon, a couple pounds showed up on the front doorstep."

And that is the part Lochner says he appreciates the most about being a rural doctor.

"I get to know my patients very well, and they get to know me," he said. "I see my patients out and about. I enjoy taking care of my friends, family and neighbors. Being a family practitioner in a rural community is not about the money."

Lochner is a native of Prairie du Chien, Wis. He received a scholarship to Xavier, a Jesuit boarding school in his hometown.

"My dad couldn't afford to buy a Coke, but with that scholarship, many doors opened to me," he said.

He obtained his medical degree from the University of Wisconsin and completed his residency at the University of Wisconsin Medical School Family Residency, St. Mary's Hospital, Madison. He is board certified in family practice.

After moving to Waupaca, he, Dr. Jerry Salan and two other physicians founded Waupaca Family Medicine. Picking family practice as a career, and in a rural community, was not a hard decision.

"Many students in the residency program like myself who came from rural areas knew the lifestyle and said Lochner, who is the second oldest of 12 children. "I enjoy the variety and challenges of family medicine. My practice ranges from the care of children to elderly patients. I have an additional certification in geriatric medicine."

Lochner and his wife, Cathy, have five children, four of whom were born at Riverside Medical Center. One is a doctor.

"This is a nice community to live in and work in," he said. "It's close to the Fox Valley and Madison. It's a great place to raise a family."

He lived in a larger city for a while, but admits he did not like commuting. "I like to get home," he said. "I wanted to go to work, come home for lunch and even work partly from home."

Family practice medicine in the Waupaca area has "gotten easier" in the last three decades, Lochner said. "When I started there were four of us here, and we also had to work in the emergency room and be an OB. One year I delivered 80 babies. We worked every other weekend, and occasionally we rode in the ambulance transferring patients to another hospital."

Lochner is impressed with how far medicine has advanced, especially with the technology that connects his physician's office with ThedaCare's hospitals and specialists.

"With our electronic medical records, we can connect to the hospital when the paramedics transfer a patient, or share the patient's information with a specialist. That allows for seamless, ongoing care of the patient," he said. "In addition, the transporting of patients, from the ambulance to the creation of the ThedaCare air medical program, has improved greatly."

One of Lochner's hobbies is managing his tree farm, which he got with the help of a patient's family. "I took care of someone's son who was seriously injured in an accident," he said. "His father helped me get this old piece of property. We planted red pines on it."

Advanced Family Eyecare opens at new location in Waupaca

By ANGIE LANDSVERK

Post Staff Writer

Dr. Dan Everts' eye-care business has a new location and a new name.

Advanced Family Eyecare and Optical Center opened on West Fulton Street this week.

The new name for his business reflects his philosophy of providing eye care for the entire family and using the latest technology to do so.

About three years ago, Everts began the process of searching for a new site for his business.

"I was trying to figure out a route as far as a new facility," he said.

Dr. Gerald Clarke, an eye surgeon in Oshkosh, introduced Everts to Mark Welhouse, the general manager of Valley Real Estate Trust.

Everts once worked part time at Clarke's practice, and Valley Real Estate Trust of Appleton is an investment trust that invests in commercial properties.

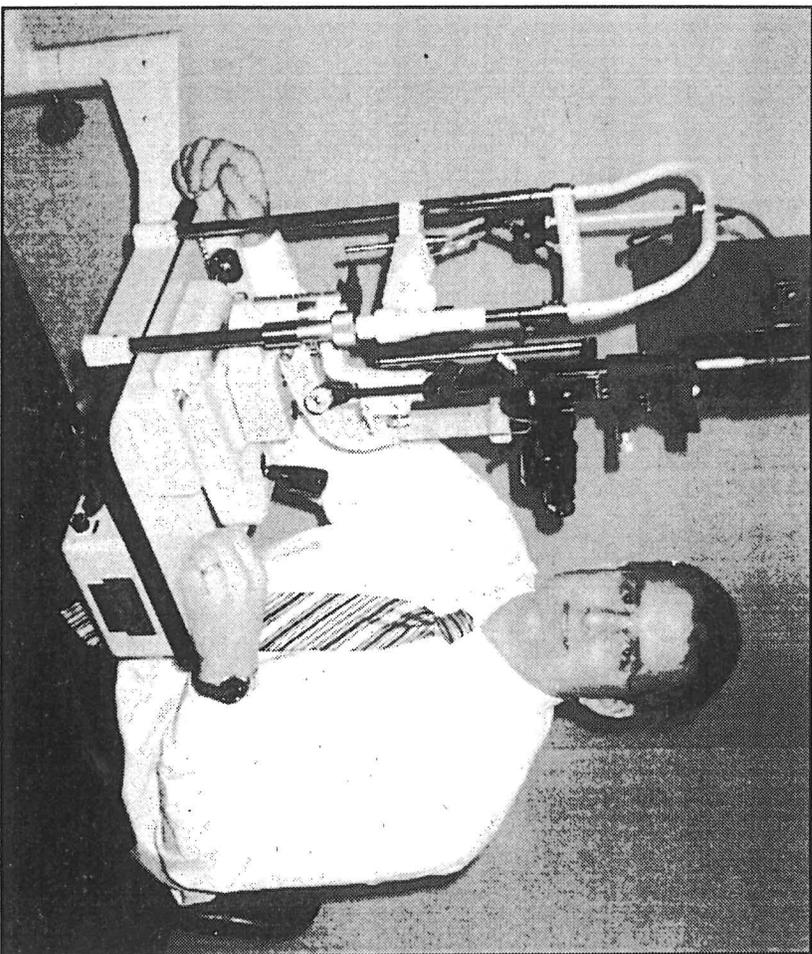

It was just last January that Everts was introduced to Welhouse, and after looking at various properties, Everts purchased the property on West Fulton Street.

"I felt it was an ideal location for a business," he said. "No matter what ever happens to Waupaca's development, it will always be visible."

His goal was to better serve his patients, and by purchasing the property, Everts has also played a role in revitalizing that area of the city.

"It is important to be involved and support the community. I think that is what makes Waupaca a great place to live. Everyone gives business to each other. I think that is one of the main lessons Dr. [Jack] Brueckner taught me."

Brueckner is Everts' father-in-law, and the two worked together in the practice Brueckner started in Waupaca until Brueckner retired.

DR. DAN EVERTS

That practice — Waupaca Eyecare Center — was located at 418 School St.

Everts joined him in 1999 after graduating from the Illinois College of Optometry.

He and Jacci Brueckner were also married after his graduation. The two have known each other since they were in third grade. Their son Ryan will soon turn 3 years old.

Everts said he had always had an interest in health care.

"I was trying to think of a career. I didn't know what I wanted to do," he explained. "I had my first eye exam, when I was a sophomore in high school, with Dr. Brueckner."

Everts had not known much about and having ownership in a business rather than working for someone would be satisfying for us."

After joining Brueckner in 1999, they formed a partnership, and Everts purchased the business over a three-year period.

Growth in the business continued, but expansion at the School Street location was limited.

After purchasing the property on West Fulton Street, Utschig Imperial Building Systems Inc. of Greenville was hired for the project.

"At least six local subcontracting companies were hired to do the work here. We purchased all the building materials from Torborg's," Everts said.

From start to finish, construction took four months.

Everts has 3,600 square feet of space, compared to 1,900 square feet at the previous location.

The increase in space allows him to provide the ultimate care for his patients.

"The optical has grown to twice the size," he said. "It's definitely one of the largest selections of eye wear in the area."

He wanted the setting to be comfortable and inviting, and said the design was 100 percent his wife's.

Jacki Johnson, of Hansen's Furniture & Appliance, helped them select the artwork.

Some of Everts' patients had been with Brueckner since he started his practice here in 1965.

"Seeing how Dr. Brueckner cared for his patients — he was a great mentor," Everts said. "You really have to listen to what people have to say and do whatever you can to take care of their needs. Patients are coming to see you for a service. What's satisfying is helping patients. My philosophy is to develop long-term relationships with my patients."

Since graduating from optometry school, Everts has seen many changes when it comes to technology.

With three exam rooms and additional room for the future, Everts plans to continue educating his patients.

Patients with young children will also notice the play area in the waiting room.

Everts, who says family is first and who loves to ski, golf and go boating, says Farmers State Bank was wonderful during the process.

He is also very appreciative of his seven employees.

"It's been a smooth transition," he said. "We're excited to be here. I can't say enough about my staff. Without them, this never would have happened."

ThedaCare provides surgeons in rural areas

ThedaCare employs four surgeons in rural areas to ensure that people who live in these small communities also have access to surgical care.

"Rural surgeons are required to cover more specialty surgeries than most urban surgeons," said Dr. Gary Edelman, a general surgeon with ThedaCare Physicians-Waupaca. "We have no hospitalists on-site, and specialists come in only once or twice a week to perform outpatient procedures."

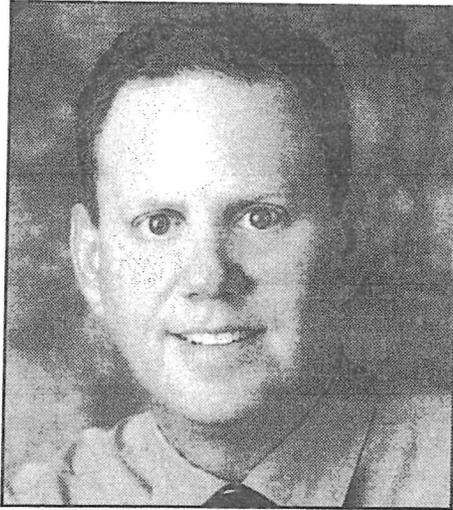

Rural surgeons often will perform minor procedures, such as C-sections and tubal ligations, which would generally be performed by a gynecologist. Half of the caseload in Waupaca, for example, are endoscopies, which are generally performed by a gastroenterologist in urban hospitals.

After working in an urban setting for many years, Edelman found that the high-paced hospital setting left him with less time for his patients.

"You get to know your patients better in the rural setting," he said. "You are responsible for their care from the beginning to the end."

Patients in rural areas benefit from having access to a rural surgeon. The family can be present during surgery and recovery without spending money on gas or a hotel. Since the hospital often is close, there is no need for emergency transport, which helps keep health care costs lower.

Another way patients benefit is that family can be present to discuss treatment options. There also are not as many doctors in the mix. Because the rural surgeon knows the patient's history, he or she has a better idea of the care needed.

The biggest misconception about rural surgeons is that the level or quality of care they deliver is not as high as in urban areas.

"All our rural surgeons are in the ThedaCare system. They are held to the same standards as the surgeons in Neenah or Appleton," Edelman said.

He noted that all rural and urban surgeons have the same residencies and education. Most are board certified Fellows of the American College of Surgeons.

Another misconception is that people often feel they have to visit a larger hospital for a certain procedure because they are not aware that their rural surgeon could handle it. Patients aren't always aware that rural surgeons have access to a lot of the same technology as urban surgeons and can cover many different procedures.

There are times when a rural surgeon could handle a certain procedure, but due to a patient's personal medical background, the surgeon may recommend that the patient go to a specialist. Patients may need specialized postoperative ICU care, or a surgical subspecialist such as a vascular, colorectal or thoracic surgeon.

"The benefit is that a rural doctor will know this much sooner than an urban doctor due to the personal relationships we are able to have with our patients," Edelman said.

Due to smaller staffs, rural surgeons are required to be on call much more than urban surgeons. For example, a surgeon in Appleton may be on call seven nights a month, while a surgeon in Waupaca will need to be on call 15 nights a month. Ten to 12 of these nights are C-section nights, meaning the surgeon must be able to get to the hospital within 20 minutes.

Edelman said that in the last few years only 50 graduates nationwide chose to locate in rural areas with populations of less than 50,000 people.

"There are an increasing number of graduates who are going into specialty surgery. They are shying away from general surgery," he said.

There are two rural surgeons in Waupaca, and each surgeon sees about 30 patients per week and performs about 50 to 60 procedures a month. ThedaCare also employs a rural surgeon at its Shawano location and a rural surgeon at its New London location.

Dr. Lowell Peterson retires from practice

By ANGIE LANDSVERK
Post Staff Writer

When Dr. Lowell Peterson first began working as a cardiologist, most of the patients he saw had already suffered heart attacks.

"We were trying to put the genie back in the bottle after the fact," he said. "You don't see that anymore. Those people were the survivors. Everyone else had died. Now, people are getting identified and treated prior to having a heart attack."

In the more than 40 years since Peterson graduated from medical school, he has seen countless changes in the field of medicine.

He recently took time to reflect on the profession because his retirement was approaching. He officially retired Jan. 31.

Affectionately known in this area as "Dr. Lowell," Peterson said, "I really feel a friendship and a relationship to these people."

He was referring to his many patients, as well as those who work in health care.

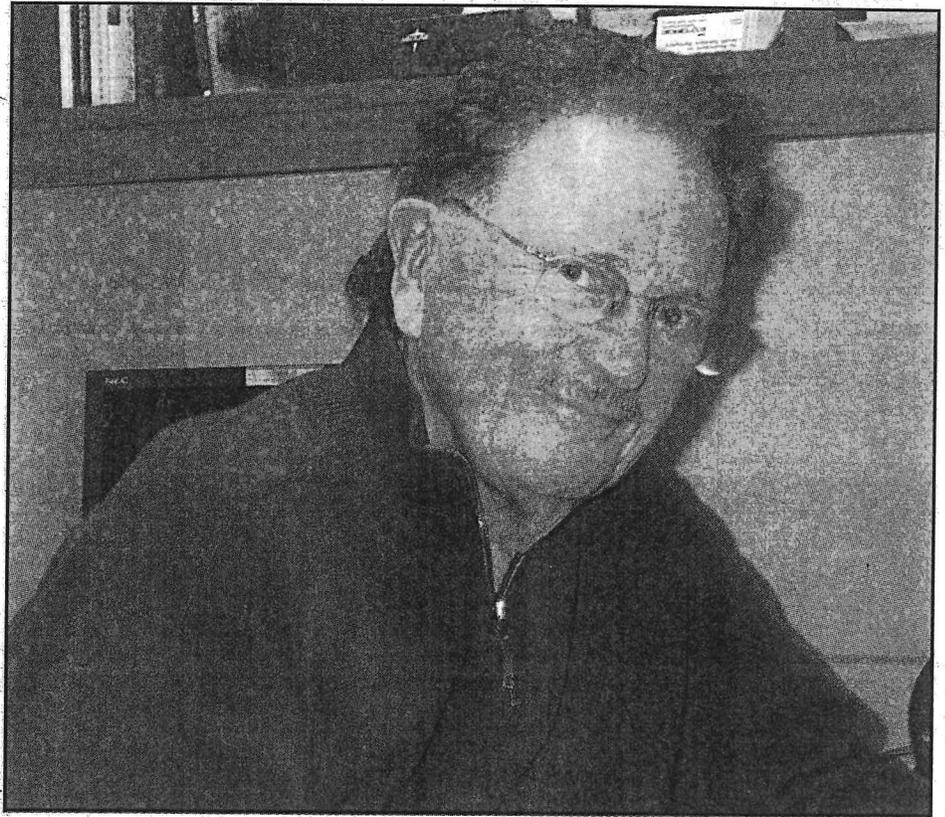

There are reasons why he decided to retire now, after seeing patients locally for close to 40 years.

In July 1970 Peterson joined an Appleton group practice that worked in internal medicine. Ten years later, it became Appleton Cardiology Associates, with Peterson being among its founders.

Peterson, who grew up on a farm near Scandinavia, attended Luther College, where he graduated with a bachelor's degree in biology and chemistry, with a minor in history.

Of history, he says, "It's always been an interest of mine. I enjoy reading history and studying it."

It was likely during his third year in college that he knew medicine was indeed the direction he wanted to go.

"By that time, I was reading health-related articles and studying physiology and genetics and organic chemistry," he said.

In 1962, Peterson graduated from the University of Wisconsin Medical School in Madison. That was followed by an internship, three years in the U.S. Air Force and then an internal medicine residency at Milwaukee County Hospital – now Froedert Hospital.

"Then, I didn't know whether to go into practice or some other specialty," he said. "The fellow who was going to take the cardiology fellowship had to cancel and go back to Panama for his family's business. The cardiology fellowship was open. Somebody said, 'Why don't you apply for it?' So, I did it. I did the cardiology fellowship before going into practice."

It was a one-year fellowship, and Peterson was certain quite soon that cardiology was the area in which he wanted to specialize.

"There was no question – I was hooked," he said. "That was when cardiac surgery and cardiac catheterization were just getting started. It was like being in on the ground floor of something. Before that, there wasn't much of a specialty. It was looking at

Tips for avoiding holiday food poisoning

People who still enjoy raw beef dishes like "tiger meat," steak tartare and cannibal sandwiches, or drink old-fashioned eggnog with raw eggs, should be aware of salmonella and E. coli.

Bacterial infections may lurk in such traditional specialties. If served during the holidays, these raw meat and raw egg dishes could mean serious outbreaks of food-borne illness. Because they're most often served at family gatherings, chances are the guests include small children and the elderly who both are especially vulnerable to bacterial infection.

"Most people know that raw meat can make them sick, or even kill them, but tradition dies hard. And it almost seems as if they think they get a free pass because it's a holiday. Nothing could be further from the truth, but still some people hang on to that tradition," said Jim Larson, director of meat safety and inspection in the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection.

An outbreak of salmonella poisoning in Wisconsin in 1994 was traced to the ground beef served raw in traditional holiday dishes. It sickened nearly 160 people ranging in age from 2 to 90 years old.

While diarrhea is the predominant symptom of salmonella infection, an E. coli infection can be quite severe, resulting in kidney failure and related lifelong health problems, or even death.

"There is no safe way to consume raw meat, no matter what precautions you take with sanitation and refrigeration," Larson said. "But no matter how often we say it, we know that some people are determined to celebrate the holidays like Grandma did. So if you insist on serving these dishes, here are some things that might reduce the risk. But remember, you cannot safely serve them by any public health standard."

- Wash hands thoroughly before and after handling raw meats.

- Use only freshly ground cuts of meat – whole pieces ground in a sanitized meat grinder.

- Never add raw eggs to the recipe.
- Keep meat at 40°F or lower until serving.

- Set serving dishes on ice.
- Bring out small portions and refill with refrigerated product as needed.

Tom Leitzke, director of food safety and inspection for DATCP, offers similar warnings about using raw eggs to make eggnog.

"Some people swear that eggnog's just not the same without raw eggs," he said. "But unlike raw beef, eggnog can be prepared safely using pasteurized eggs. Pasteurized eggs are available in both liquid form and as shell eggs."

Burgstede joins ThedaCare in Waupaca

Dr. Gil Burgstede has joined ThedaCare Physicians-Waupaca as an urgent care physician.

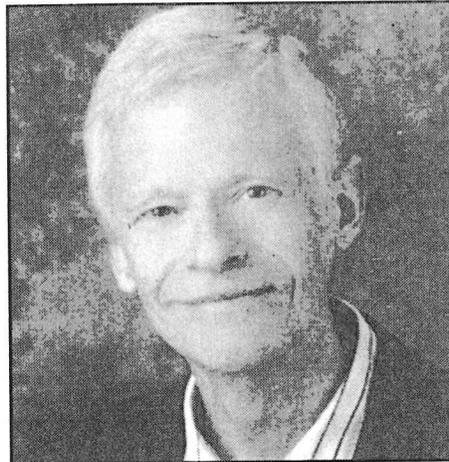

With a background of working as an emergency room physician and urgent care physician for the past 18 years, he treats urgent medical needs and then returns the patient to the care of their primary physician for follow-up and continued health maintenance.

Burgstede received his medical degree from the Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee and completed his family practice residency at the University of Illinois-Rockford Medical College.

Burgstede seeks to provide patients with the treatment and information necessary to return them to good health as soon as possible.

Outside of work, Burgstede enjoys writing as well as teaching mind-body techniques for healing and wholeness. He also enjoys spending time in na-an EKG and chest X-rays. There were a limited number of drugs to work with."

Peterson interviewed at several places before choosing the Appleton practice.

"It was the opportunity to be involved in the initial startup of a heart catheterization program – to be in on the ground floor of developing a new service," he said.

Heart disease remains the No. 1 killer in the U.S. for both men and women, Peterson said.

"There's been a gradual decrease in the number of deaths due to this in the past 20 to 30 years, mostly related to better medical and surgical treatment, more drugs to work with, better control of risk factors, preventive measures and angioplasty," he said.

Peterson, himself, became a consumer about 21 years ago when he had to have a bypass.

Following the surgery, he cut back on his work schedule and began working 40-hour weeks rather than 80-hour weeks.

As a result of needing a bypass, Peterson said he was able to relate much better to his own patients.

When it comes to heart disease, he said, "Prevention is still the best treatment. People should not ignore the risk factors for a heart attack or stroke. There are risk factors you can't do anything about, such as genetic. You can't change your parents. But, you can control your blood pressure and cholesterol, and diabetes and your weight, and establish exercise programs and other healthy endeavors."

He believes that the past 50 years have been the "golden age of cardiology."

Peterson said, "We've gone from a position of not being able to do much about anything to being able to do a lot about everything."

That is due to such things as the development of new and better drugs, having a better understanding of the disease process and how to treat it, and getting patients into the system and treated before they have heart attacks and damage their hearts, he said.

Peterson said the medical profession has changed much during the past 50 years and that he is perhaps most proud of the development of the Appleton Heart Institute and the development of services to the Fox Valley and surrounding communities, as they stayed on the cutting edge of providing services as they developed.

"Early on, we were practically a one-person or multiperson show that went out to outlying communities and sell with medical staffs to educate and sell them on the services they couldn't provide but we could. That service has extended from Berlin and Ripon all the way to Two Rivers, Oconto Falls, Shawano and Antigo, as well as Waupaca and New London. On a regular basis, we send doctors to Berlin, Chilton, New London Shawano and Waupaca," he said.

That fact in particular is why Peterson feels comfortable retiring now. "I've been coming out here (to Riverside Medical Center) most of those 38 1/2 years at least once per week and oftentimes, twice per week to see patients," he said. "I really wanted to keep working until I was sure that this community and this hospital were well covered by cardiac. Within the last couple of years, they have added more (cardiologists). I now feel comfortable that we have good coverage here. The young guys are well-trained and probably able to do a lot of things that I can't do anymore. There's a certain amount of separation anxiety between the patients and myself, because they followed me for many years."

He and his wife, Mary, live in Appleton and have four children and 11 grandchildren. They also have a place on the Chain O' Lakes.

"I'll stay active," Peterson said. "I like to do yardwork. I have plenty of that to do, between my different properties. I probably will do more writing, whether it's books or articles or something fun."

People have asked him when he will write another Ole and Sven story, and he says he will likely write one once in a while, seeing it as a good way to relay medical information to the public.

His interest in writing evolved later in his career.

"We always are writing in medicine. I've been involved in maybe eight or 10 medical articles over the years," he said.

He has written three books and said his first two books sold out of the 2,000 copies that were printed for each of them.

His family hosted countless foreign students through the years, and so, he and Mary can "probably find a place to sleep or at least one free meal in every foreign country," he said.

Peterson believes he had a good relationship with the referring physicians he worked with and with his patients.

"To just one day turn that off is very difficult and will take some real adjustments, emotionally and mentally," he said. "I have thoroughly enjoyed being a doctor. It has never ever been drudgery to get up and go to work, even if that was getting up in the middle of the night or several times in the night and working the next day. I used to say that I worked on batteries."

He compared it to a parent who must get up during the night for a child. "I wouldn't give that up. I feel the same way about the profession," Peterson said.

RMC opens new hospital pharmacy

WAUPACA – Riverside Medical Center (RMC) opened a new hospital pharmacy aimed at getting hospital pharmacists closer to the bedside.

The new 1,100-square-foot pharmacy, which is used only for patients in the hospital, is located adjacent to RMC's inpatient floor and emergency department. The old pharmacy was in a separate wing several hundred yards away from the nursing stations and patient rooms.

"We used to have a long walk and now we are right there," said RMC pharmacy manager Dwayne Riendeau. "Pharmacists want to be more involved in patient care, so it's better that we are close to the floor. We are closer to patients, and can consult with them, their families and their physicians to provide a more timely, accurate and safe medication treatment plan."

The pharmacy staff is also more accessible to physicians and nursing staff, he added.

The pharmacy, which opened earlier this month, features a modernized sterile IV compounding room and an open-concept design for a more efficient work flow.

"It's a nice upgrade for us and we have the most up-to-date features," Riendeau added. "It's nice to say that our pharmacy standards are the best they can be."

The new pharmacy is part of the final phase of ThedaCare's $23 million building and improvement project that transformed RMC and ThedaCare Physicians-Waupaca into an integrated health facility. The new facility opened in January 2009.

The facility also includes a full-service retail pharmacy that is located in the ThedaCare Physicians wing.

I take a collaborative approach to care and respect that all of my patients are unique in that they have their own beliefs, values and ideas. My goal is to listen to you and understand your needs.

In all of my years practicing as a physician, the best part would have to be the long-term relationships I've developed with so many patients and staff. I really enjoy what I do every day and continue to be intrigued by the new developments in evidence-based medicine.

- About Me:

You're more than a patient to me. You're a person, and the best part of my job is getting to know you in the context of your family and community.

I've been practicing in Waupaca long enough that I'm now delivering the children of patients I delivered a generation ago. These lifelong relationships are the reason I chose family practice. When I'm not caring for yours, I enjoy spending time with my own family.

I've adopted the philosophy to treat each patient with the same level of respect and empathy that I'd want shown to my own mother. To me, family is one of the most important things in a person's life. I feel privileged to be able to care for yours - from the newest members and their great grandparents to everyone in between.

The years I've spent running and training for marathons have given me a new perspective on what endurance really means and I hope to pass some of my energy and enthusiasm on to you.

ThedaCare nurse going to Peru

WEYAUWEGA – Linda Radtke has a passion for mission trips.

As the recipient of the Jodie Kacer Mission Trip Scholarship, Radtke will be part of a mission trip to Peru next year.

“It is food for my soul,” said Radtke, 39, of Weyauwega.

Radtke, a nurse at ThedaCare Medical Center-New London, has been to Haiti eight times.

One of those times was right after the earthquake that devastated the area.

Mission trips allow her “to use the talents that I have to be able to help people.”

And while she is serving, she is receiving from those she helps.

“As much as I help them, they give me way more than I could ever give them,” she said.

Kacer, a human resources employee at ThedaCare, also went on mission trips.

After she passed away, a $1,000 scholarship was established for a ThedaCare employee to go on a mission trip.

When Radtke learned she won the scholarship, she was excited.

“It’s such a blessing to be chosen for that,” she said. “That’s a huge blessing. I think Jodi would be so excited to hear about this new adventure I am able to go on because of the money.”

Radtke initially planned to go back to Haiti, but as she was filling out the scholarship paperwork, she was asked to join a first-time mission trip to Peru in February through her church, Christ the Rock Community Church in Menasha.

“Because of the scholarship, I was able to say yes right away,” she said, noting her group is traveling into the Amazon jungle where there has never been a mission trip.

Mission trips call on every skill Radtke has.

“I use a lot of my nursing skills, judgment, assessment, triaging, wound care,” she said. “We do lots and lots of wound care. We see a lot of what you and I would go to see a primary care doctor. They don’t have that. They don’t have that accessibility.”

She also uses her compassion when treating, often holding a hand or touching the patient.

“A lot of times that is all they need, too,” she said. “Touch is one of our basic needs. Many cultures, they don’t get that. That’s all they want is to be able to be touched and listened to and heard.”

Radtke talked to Kacer over the phone prior to some of her Haiti trips.

But she never had the opportunity to meet her.

“I know she would be excited, because I am doing something outside of my safety zone,” she said. “I just hope to do her proud by this trip. It will be neat.”
